

LITTLE THEATRE NEWS

According to an announcement made today by Matt O'Shields, Tryon Little Theatre president, three plays will be given during the 1951-52 season.

The opener will be "Hay Fever" by Noel Coward. It will be performed at the Tryon High School auditorium Thursday and Friday, November 15th and 16th. Subsequent plays will be presented in January and later in the Spring of next year. "The Two Mrs. Carrrolls" has been selected for the January presentations and announcement will be made of the Spring play at a later date.

Four classifications of memberships will be offered this year, according to Mr. O'Shields. Patron members will be entitled to two tickets for each play and memberships are available at $10 each. Patron's names will be listed in programs. Associate memberships give the holder one ticket for each play and are sold at $3 for the season. Active memberships are available only to persons actively associated with theatre productions as actors or members of the production staff. This classification sells for $1 for the season. Student memberships sell for $1.50 for the three play season. z

Craig Thomas is chairman of the membership committee which is now offering memberships for sale.

The Tryon Little Theatre began operations in 1947 and since that time has produced three plays each year. Personnel for the plays, both on and off stage, has been drawn from Tryon with the exception of last year's "Night Must Fall" presentation when James Hobbs of the Spartanburg Little Theatre was seen in a leading role.

The cast of the season's opening "Hay Fever" is now in rehearsal under the direction of Mrs. Henry Hart.
