FAIR WEATHER AGAIN FOR BIG HORSE SHOW

The weather man again promises fair weather for the 24th annual Horse and Hound Show at Harmon Field Wednesday. Rain has never stopped a Tryon Horse Show since it began about 30 years ago. However, during the war when it was temporarily abandoned, it did rain on what would have been Horse Show Day. The weather will be a little chilly, but the usual large crowd is expected. Mrs. F. P. Bacon stated several days ago that all the ring-side parking spaces had been sold, and only box seats and general admission tickets are available. The sale of general admission tickets is being advocated in order to save time at the gate. If purchasers of general admission tickets will buy them today at the Blue Ridge Weavers, they can tie them on their coat lapels and go right in without interruption. There is plenty of free parking space on the field for all cars.

President Willis E. Kuhn has had a large corps of volunteer committeemen busy at work on hundreds of details to make the show a success. Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Sassoon, chairmen of the box lunch committee have already sold in advance enough box lunches to feed a lot of people. This advance sale assures success of that project. Those who did not buy in advance will have to take their chances. Those who have any doubts may wish to pay for their box lunch as soon as they arrive on the field and get their names in the pot and find out what the score is.
