Daniel Boone, A Great Man

Wilbur Roadhouse was in charge of the Rotary program Friday and presented Rev. Wayne Williams, retired army chaplain, historian, lecturer and president of the North Carolina Wildlife Association as his guest speaker.

As a representative of the "Thunderland" play at Asheville, Rev. Williams gave an outline of the life and achievements of Daniel Boone, who he linked with Abraham Lincoln and Robert E. Lee as the great men in America from the standpoint of character and ability.

Boone, a native of Pennsylvania, came to North Carolina with his father when 15 years old. Married Rebecca Bryan at 24; was a wagoner in Braddock's army in French-Indian war; killed a bear in Tennessee in 1760; in Florida in 1765; explored Kentucky, and in 1771 with five neighbors went to Kentucky river. Boone only survived. Returned in 1773 on a settling expedition backed by Henderson who bought three-fourths of Kentucky from the Indians in 1775 for $50,000. Boonesboro was built and besieged by Indians. Boone captured by Shawnee Indians at Salt Lick and taken to Chillicothe, Ohio, and adopted. He escaped, travelling on foot 165 miles, with only one meal, to help save the Fort. Later settlers, crooked lawyers, land sharks, etc., froze him out of his own property. Broken hearted he moved to Missouri where the Spanish governor welcomed him and gave him a free tract of land. He continued to explore the far west until 85 when he died.

The speaker said Boone felt
