John Golding Is Co-Editor The N. C. Law Review

John G. Golding of Tryon, senior law student at the University of North Carolina has been named co-editor of The North Carolina Law Review, the legal periodical, published by the University School of Law.

The appointment is made on the basis of the student's scholastic standing over a period of two years. This year for the first time in history the honor is shared with another top ranking student, Hershell H. Keener of Lenoir, N. C., who is tied with Mr. Golding at the end of their first two years at the Law School. Both are good friends and members of the Phi Alpha Delta legal fraternity. Mr. Golding is treasurer of the Ruffin chapter at the University, and he will leave Monday for Chicago to attend the 50th national convention at the Edgewater Beach Hotel. August 28 through the 30th.

The North Carolina Law Review is printed by the University of North Carolina Press for the School of Law at Chapel Hill. The subscription price is $1.25 per copy. It contains articles by noted legal authorities and notes and comments by members of the staff, book reviews, and news of the North Carolina State Bar.

The Law Review is published four times a year. In the issue published in February Mr. Golding had a four page article on "Agency—Criminal Liability of Corporation of Agents' Knowledge" in which he discussed "Defendant trucking corporation convicted of knowingly and willfully keeping false driver's logs in violation of a federal statute." The article
