POLK COUNTY ELECTION CHIEF IS REMOVED

Ned Anderson has been removed as Polk County election chairman.

The North Carolina Board of Elections took the action in Asheville Friday after studying findings of a hearing held here Wednesday and Thursday.

Charles M. Britt of Asheville, chairman, said Anderson's successor had been appointed. His name was withheld until he is notified.

Theft of election ballots from Deputy Sheriff Sellers Edwards' car on the day of the primary, touched off the probe by S. B. I. and local officers.

More than 40 witnesses appeared at the hearing. Most of them either said they did not know anything about "the theft of the ballots" or were reluctant to take the stand.

The board, ruling in closed session in Asheville, ordered Anderson removed for alleged "negligence in performing duties as chairman."

It ruled on the following counts: Failure to use reasonable precaution in transporting official blank ballots on June 28, the date of the Democratic primary; failure to use the necessary precaution and care required of him to locate the ballots after they were removed from the car in which they were being transported; and failure to report promptly the removal of the ballots to the proper authorities.

The board also voted to turn over the S. B. I. report and other evidence to Attorney General Harry McMullen. He will be instructed to forward evidence to Solicitor Clarence O. Ridings of Forest City "for such action as said solicitor shall deem necessary."
