Vol. 25—No. 325 TRYON, N. C.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 21, 1953

Weather Tuesday: High 65, low 32, Rel. Hum. 65 . . . Today's headlines feature the inauguration of President Eisenhower who accepted the responsibilities of the office with a prayer on his lips. He pledged his best efforts to build and unify the strength of the free world for peace, and called on Americans to make whatever sacrifices may be required. He said, "We shall never try to placate an aggressor by false and wicked bargain or trading honor for security." Millions of people all over the United States saw the inauguration on television sets and the 5-hour parade which followed. In Tryon a large group assembled at Park Hall to see it over the hotel's big 24-inch set. In the Tryon school the school children saw it through courtesy of Hill's Radio and Television Service. Ballenger's also had a group, and B. Frank Carruth in Landrum, and in homes throughout this section. South Carolina and North Carolina both had floats in the parade which depicted the resources of the region. It was a grand occasion and a good boost for the Democratic way of life . . . No duplicate bridge this Thursday. Only once a month now, the Master Point night, every third Thursday in the month . . . A voice over the phone this morning, said, . . .
