ENTITLED AS SECOND CLASS MATTER AUGUST 20, 1928, AT THE POSTOFFICE
AT TRYON, N. C. UNDER THE ACT OF CONGRESS, MARCH 3, 1879

THE TRYON DAILY BULLETIN

The World's Smallest DAILY Newspaper.

Seth M. Vining, Editor

Vol. 25—No. 330 TRYON, N. C.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 28, 1953

Weather Tuesday: High 60, low 28, Rel. Hum. 67 . . . Gas explosion at Aiken, S. C., with loss of 10 lives and $2 million damage, is the big headline for this section. Explosion caused by leaking gas pipe . . . A number of Polk County people are employed in the area. However, the H-Bomb plant was not in the immediate area. The Ice Vogues open in Spartanburg tonight at 8:15 in the Memorial Auditorium. This is one of the most fascinating shows of its kind to come to this area. It will last for five nights . . . J. Foster Dulles thinks President Eisenhower has a good chance to end the war . . . So far 66 pages of the Anniversary Edition have been printed. The cooperation of many friends in sending in advertisements and articles and suggestions is making a hard task a pleasure. The Bulletin will be their Bulletin as they have created it from day to day, and we are most grateful.
