Research in the mid-1930's showed that leafspot of peanuts can be controlled by using sulfur and copper dusts.

Everybody talks about the weather and every year more and more people are doing something about it—to enjoy tranquil warm days in winter and cool nights in summer, they are coming to the Thermal Belt. This steady growth makes property around Tryon a desirable investment and we can offer some very attractive places—the full views of the mountains are marvelous, the knolls are well wooded and carpeted with wildflowers, the streams are spring-fed and private woodland lakes can easily be made. Some of the pieces can be financed over five years—an attractive opportunity for those who wish to anticipate retirement and choose their future homesite now. The initial cost is not much, the trees and land increase in value year by year, taxes are low and nature will look after the property free. So why not choose your homesite while this choice acreage is still available? A letter or phone call will bring you full information. Richardson & Karsten and G.
