Tryon Firemen Honored

Three members of the Tryon Volunteer Fire Department have received gold lapel buttons from the North Carolina State Firemen's Association in recognition of their 25 years volunteer service to the community of Tryon. They are Wayne W. Creasman, Eb Fisher and Jack Ford.

The buttons have a white border with the words North Carolina State Firemen's Association and 25 years on it. In the center in gold is the official firemen's emblem surrounded by a red background divided by a cross mark similar to an "X"; on the left of the "X" is the letter "F" and on the right the letter "D" for Fire Department.

These emblems recognize more than faithfulness in attendance for more than a quarter of a century. They recognize loyalty to a noble cause—the saving of life and property of all the people of their community and of neighboring communities in emergencies. They recognize the service of men who do not wait until tomorrow or some time in the future to help you, but men who respond to your distress call now while your house is burning or lives of your loved ones are in danger; they are men who do not think of their own convenience when you need them. They answer the call whenever it comes—in the middle of the night, in the middle of the day, during an entertainment, at meal time, at work or whenever. A fireman's life is devoted to instant service to his fellowman.

All Tryon Firemen keep in trim for their job. They attend district and state meetings and every year
