

FLOWERDOM TONIGHT

The closing exercises of the 5th and 6th grades of the Edmund Embury school will be held tonight at 8:30. The program, "A Day In Flowerdom", will be directed by Miss A. M. Stack. Public invited.

Sunday's Asheville Citizen-Times had a letter to the editor article from Frederick Rutledge of Asheville, in which he told about "Dark Corner" a region in northwestern part of South Carolina. He said in 1870 it was thickly timbered with oak, poplar, maple, spruce pine, mountain laurel, dogwood and evergreens. It was the home of moonshiners. The bays and terrains gave coverage for the moonshiners and at the same time permitted them to see the approach of officers or any stranger. Mr. Rutledge said the people in Dark Corner were very hospitable to their friends and were afraid of no man. They made the best soldiers. He never heard of one being a jail bird or a drunkard. They made moonshine liquor because they believed they had a right to and would shoot anyone who interfered with their business.

Charles Dusenbury is being visited by his children, Sandra and Chris, during their spring vacation from Cranbrook school in Bloomfield Hills, Mich.

Mr. and Mrs. P. G. Dusenbury leave this week-end from Miami, Fla., for a week in New Orleans and then on to Tryon for their annual summer stay.
