COMMUNICATIONS

Dear Mr. Vining:

One of the most momentous events in the entire history of the world occurred just 50 years ago with the invention of the airplane.

The June issue of Harper's Magazine will carry the never-before published story of that achievement, written by one of the two men responsible for it—Orville Wright. How he and his brother built and flew the world's first plane is described in an unforgettable document that I thought you would be interested in seeing.
