Reagan Ammons

The National Association of Extension 4-H Agents at their annual convention in Colorado Springs, Colorado honored Reagan Ammons, Polk County Extension Chairman with a Distinguished Service Award.

Ammons was cited for organizing the 4-H club for the deaf while working in Burke County and providing opportunities for youth to participate in auto, fire and hunter safety programs.

He was serving as president of the North Carolina 4-H Agents Association when he was named the Polk County extension chairman in 1977. He is a native of Macon County and a graduate of North Carolina State University.

St. Luke's Invites New Outreachers

Citizens interested in being part of the Operation Outreach program of St. Luke's Hospital are invited to a dinner, progress report and report of future plans, and a tour of the hospital, Monday, February 4th at 6:30 p.m.

Please phone Ms. Bobbie Hill, secretary to Administrator Howard J. Spika, at St. Luke's, with your names — and number in your party if you are several. Or call Chairman Dr. William R. Bosien at his home.

St. Luke's will not mail followup letters, so once you phone, you are an expected guest unless you find it necessary to cancel.

(If Outreach members outnumber St. Luke's cafeteria seating facilities, a second dinner will be arranged).

Operation Outreach is bringing information about St. Luke's health care and medical services out into all areas served by the hospital.

Doctors and staff travel to meetings of organizations with these programs, and many groups arrange to have their meeting in the hospital for a first hand exploration.

Please phone by Friday, Jan. 25. — Hospital Reporter
