NERVOUS TENSION ...

Is It Ruining Your Life?

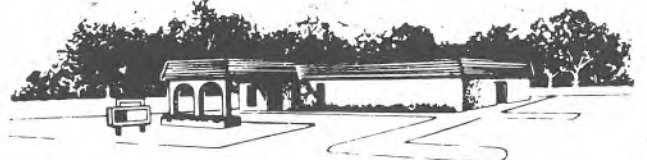

At one time or another nearly everyone will suffer the distress of a case of nervous tension. Unfortunately, for a great many Americans, children and adults alike, nervousness has become a chronic disease with them.

Stress, tension, fears, the uncertainties of life . . . all a part of today's high pressure living, is taking its toll. One out of every ten Americans face a total nervous breakdown. More than $600 million is spent each year on tranquilizers, barbituates, anti-depressants, and similar drugs in a vain effort to relieve nervous tension.

Nervous tension and associated disorders are not always of purely emotional origin. Doctors of chiropractic have found through clinical experience with millions of patients, that there is a direct connection between the physical function of the nerve system and nervous tension disorders.

Through chiropractic correction of spinal nerve problems, and the subsequent "stabilizing" of the nerve system, physical stress to the internal nerves is removed. Your ability to cope with the stress and strains of everyday life will be strengthened, and nervousness and emotional conflicts diminishes or disappears. Don't let nervous tension ruin your life.
