Hoyle Honored

Don Hoyle, who has recently been named "North Carolina Administrator of the Year" at a meeting of the N. C. Personnel and Guidance Association in Winston Salem, has roots in Polk County. He is the son of M. C. Hoyle, a former Stearns School teacher and Ellen Hague Hoyle, a native of Columbus. His grandparents were the late Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Hague.

Hoyle is principal of Wolf Meadow Elementary School at Concord. He received the award, which is presented annually to an administrator who has shown outstanding leadership in the area of Pupil Personnel Services.

Dr. Mary T. Burke, professor at U.N.C. Charlotte, in presenting the award said: "Don Hoyle is an administrator whose main concern is the well-being and support of the students as well as the staff in his school. He sets realistic goals and assists in seeing that these goals are successfully met. He has developed innovative programs to meet the various needs in his school." She then cited numerous examples of his achievements.

Because of Hoyle's leadership in the guidance program at Wolf Meadow, the school has been selected as a model program which counselors around the state may visit and observe. — Excerpt from The Concord Tribune
