Twelve cyclists from the "Outward Bound" program were passing through Polk County Friday morning enroute to the Outerbanks.

More than 6,300 exotic birds, from tiny finches to large parrots and macaws worth up to $5,000 each, have been destroyed at an import center at Miami, Fla. because of an outbreak of Newcastle disease, a virus that kills domestic poultry. The birds were killed to try to keep the virus from spreading to domestic poultry flocks.

A disc-shaped unidentified flying object awakened some Anderson County (S. C.) residents with a humming noise and bright lights before speeding away Wednesday night.

The 4th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond, Va. ruled Thursday that the "Motorist's Prayer" that has appeared on the official state map for 16 years is an unconstitutional violation of the separation of church and state.

Governor Dick Riley of South Carolina visited the classrooms at O.P. Earle School in Landrum

Cynthia Wertz Is Keynote Speaker

Cynthia Wertz, Deputy Director from the Governor's Office of Citizens Affairs, will be the keynote speaker for the Polk County Governor's Conference on Leadership Development for Women to be held Saturday, September 20, 1980, at Tryon High School with a coffee hour and registration 8:15-9:00 a.m. The conference is designed to offer a variety of workshops to suit the interests and needs of every woman in the area concerned with developing her leadership ability. Preregistration allows each participant to choose a morning and an afternoon workshop from the list of seven choices.

Mrs. Wertz will set the tone for the day with her address, "Options, Opportunities, Risks and Butterflies." With a long list of community and career experiences, and honored as Outstanding Woman of North Carolina in 1974, Mrs. Wertz manages to juggle home and career with efficiency and enthusiasm. "My dreams and visions are of all people having the opportunity and the support in achieving their potential in life," said Mrs. Wertz.

For reservations call Emmie Mackay or Lee Mueller at 859-5428.
