Cole Porter Show Rolls Along

"An Evening With Cole Porter", the mini-musical by Eugene Warner of Landrum, which made it debut here late last May, has been as well received since it went on the road in mid-September as it was received in Tryon, where it played to four full houses.

It will make its third appearance out of town this weekend in Asheville at the auditorium of the University of North Carolina in Asheville for two performances, at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

Thursday, September 18 "An Evening With Cole Porter," starring Stephen and Christine Fitch of Landrum, played to a full house (950 seats) in Gaffney, again drawing praise, as it did a few days earlier at the Flat Rock Playhouse.

A new and exciting development for the show is pending but it's too early to make any announcement. — Reporter

Today IS Tomorrow

You are the ancestors of your children and grandchildren, their heritage.

How long has it been since you gave them your portrait?

Children don't remember parents as "young", they don't prize portraits of you taken when you were in your 20's or 30's.

Give a gift of love for Christmas, a lasting bit of yourself — a fine portrait.
