Spellman Exhibit At Whistle Stop

An exhibit of watercolors and sketches in charcoal and pencil by the late Frank Spellman of Greenville, South Carolina will be on display at The Whistle Stop Gift Shop, across from the Post Office in Saluda, on Saturday, October 4 from 10:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. and Sunday, October 5 from 2:00 to 5:00 p.m.

Spellman's works, which capture the moods of the Appalachian Mountains in a collection of thirty eight paintings and sketches, include twenty scenes of western North Carolina. A number of his paintings depict places of interest in the Columbus and Tryon area, including several of Tryon's business district, Hogback Mountain, the Landrum Road and the old jail in Columbus.

The artist, a graduate of the College of Charleston, was a registered architect and civil engineer associated with J. E. Serrine Company in Greenville, South Carolina, where he became a partner during the latter part of his life. Earlier in his life, he worked for the United States Geodetic Survey and was thoroughly familiar with the mountains of the Carolinas. He was married to the late Edna Broyles of Anderson, South Carolina where they both were reared.

Originally, Spellman painted in the style of the English painter, Turner. Later, he studied with Elliott O'Hara at Flat Rock and was influenced by O'Hara's techniques and vivid color palette. Spellman's pencil and charcoal sketches reflect a spontaniety that is, perhaps, lacking in his watercolors. The collection contains all periods of his work. — Reporter
