

Hospital Auxiliary Elects Officers

The annual luncheon meeting of the St. Luke's Hospital Auxiliary members was held at the Railroad House on October 8th.

The Treasure's report was presented by Mrs. Tucker who stated almost $40,000 of the Auxiliary earnings was directed to the hospital this year. The Auxiliary has three means of earning money: 1. the Thrift Shop on Trade Street in Tryon; 2. Income from dues and memorial fund contributions; and 3. the gift Shop in the hospital lobby.

O. O. Paulsell, chairman of the St. Luke's Board of Trustees, thanked the members for all they have contributed in money, time and effort, and stressed the important contributions thus made in reducing costs to the hospital. Mr. Paulsell presented a handsome bronze plaque with the seal of St. Luke's Hospital mounted on marble to Mrs. Thomas Beaver from the Hospital in recognition of the valuable contributions she has made as president of the Auxiliary.

"Futures Unlimited" was the topic of Miss Blomfield-Brown's speech in which she compared the early days of St. Luke's Hospital and Auxiliary with changes inaugurated in the last few years. She praised the Auxiliary for having always grown as the needs of the hospital have grown.

The most important milestones in the history of the Auxiliary, according to the speaker were: 1. when the Exchange Shop moved from its free quarters on property on which now stands the North Carolina National Bank, to the present site on Trade Street, and began to drastically increase profits; 2. the doubling of volunteers with the move to the new hospital; and 3. the installation of a Director of Volunteer Services, an innovation for a small, rural hospital.

The many problems for both patients and hospitals in meeting the exceedingly high costs of health care today were also explained, and the necessity for every hospital department to emphasize the need for curtailing all unnecessary expenses. The speaker applauded the Auxiliary's efforts both in raising funds and in helping in so many ways to make a patient's hospital stay as pleasant and comfortable as possible. How important the work of the Auxiliary is to the hospital and the community was also emphasized by the fact that it's financial contributions are now included as an integral part of the hospital's capital budget, relied upon for essential items needed by hospital and staff.

Miss Blomfield-Brown stressed how very important the work of the volunteers is in helping maintain continued exemplary standards, investigating, foreseeing, and helping in any and all community health needs, encouraging public support, establishing rapport with the community, interpreting hospital needs and services, and promoting awareness of the fact that St. Luke's can provide, locally and very adequately, almost all needed health services.

Mrs. Paula Harkins, reported that there are now 23 Junior Volunteers (Candystrippers) aged 15-18 working mostly on weekends, who assist in the work of the Cherry Smocks in many services to the patients, and who are to be praised for their efforts.

The following awards were given to volunteers for the many hours spent in service to the hospital and patients: Mrs. Stuart Forbes a 500-hour bar; a 100-hour pin to Mrs. Joseph House, Mrs. Robert Irons and Mrs. Robert Boas. Miss Joyce Searey, a Junior Volunteer, earned a 100-hour cap.

New officers elected unanimously to the Auxiliary Board are: President, Mrs. Frank Waldenfels; Vice-president, Mrs. Louis Perrotlet; Recording Secretary, Miss Mary Wilds; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Henry Prass, Jr.; Assistant to Secretaries, Mrs. Allen Wilson; Treasurer, Mrs. Ralph Tucker; and Assistant Treasurer, Mrs. J. W. A. Woody.
