Veteran Questions

Q. Under the new improved pension law, can a veteran who does not have custody of his child receive additional pension if the veteran is not paying child support?

A. No. Under the new improved pension law the veteran must be paying a child support to be entitled to any additional allowance for a dependent child.

Q. I have a VA guaranteed home loan. I plan to sell my home to an individual who will assume the payments. Can I do this? Are there any special procedures I should follow?

A. Another individual may assume your loan. However, you should contact the nearest VA regional office to obtain a release of liability or you may be held liable in the event of default on the loan.

Q. I was denied widow's benefits from the Veterans Administration because I was never legally married to a veteran with whom I had lived for 20 years. What, if anything, can I do about this?

A. VA will recognize an established common law marriage if such marriage is recognized by the state in which the couple resides. Any VA regional office will provide information and advise veterans on the evidence required to establish a common law marriage.
