Piano Classes Offered

Beginning the week of January 19, the Polk County Campus of Isothermal Community College will offer an eleven week course in class piano for beginners. The Polk campus has recently acquired a new piano lab which enables the instructor to work individually with up to six students at a time in a classroom situation. The lab itself is equipped with six keyboards and six headsets so each student can be heard only by himself and the instructor. This method has been effectively used in colleges and universities throughout the country and has met with wide acclaim.

The class will meet 3 hours a week. Morning, afternoon and evening classes have been arranged: Monday and Wednesday morning from 10 a.m. - 11:15; Tuesday and Thursday afternoons from 2:00-3:15; and Tuesday evenings from 6:30-9:15. If there are any other times which you would prefer to take a class, please call the Polk Campus at 859-6744 and classes can be arranged.

The instructor for the course will be Pam McNeil. She has taught music in public schools and is currently teaching piano in the Converse Pre-College Department in Spartanburg, Ms. McNeil who holds a Master's degree in Music education, has worked as an accompanist for various soloists as well as the Rotary Community Chorus. Having worked extensively with the class piano method, she highly recommends the method for adult beginners with little or no previous musical experience.

The cost for the course is $9.75 to N. C. residents. If you are interested in registering, call 859-6744. Registration will be held at the first class meeting. For more information, contact the Polk County Campus.
