To Visit N. C. School of Science and Mathematics

Carole Michele Marsh of Tryon High School has been selected to visit the campus of the North Carolina School of Science and Mathematics in early April. She is one of the three hundred high school sophomores who were selected by the School's Admission Committee from almost seven hundred nominees. From this group of three hundred, one-hundred fifty boys and girls will be selected for admission to the School in September as juniors.

The purpose of the campus visit is to allow prospective students and parents to meet and talk with the School's faculty, to tour the facilities, and to get acquainted with the Durham community. Each nominee will be given a 30 minute interview as part of the selection process.

The North Carolina School of Science and Mathematics is a state-wide state supported, residential high school for students gifted and talented in science and mathematics.
