Between 50 and 60 people attended the Annexation hearing Monday night at the Tryon Town Hall. WLOS-TV was also present and representing them was Sherrill Barber who was returning home. He is the son of Mrs. Minter Barber of Tryon.

Mayor Ken Tucker presided at the hearing and stated that the Annexation study had been underway for more than 12 months and the area being considered had a taxable valuation of $14,000,000 and about one-third of this was commercial. It involved 281 parcels of land and 375 people, or counting the school population about 500 people. He stated that the hearings would give the commissioners an input, from which they will make a report and have another hearing at a later date.

Most of the people present were opposed to being taken in by the town and most were from areas being considered for annexation, although there were a few town

Ask More Money For Schools

The Tryon Schools' PTA representatives took up the greater part of the Polk County Commissioners meeting on May 18.

The first Commission business included recommending Landfill and Levi Roads to be put on the State system; the County's athletic director's report on the successful Tee Ball program; reports from VA, Recreation, Health, Mental Health and consideration of the parking problem around the library.

Green River Cove Management Board was discussed in terms of the need to advertise for members; Secretary Lee's suggested figure of 5 from Polk and 4 from Henderson; and the plan to meet very soon with Henderson's Commissioners. Polk's Commissioner Butler expressed his desire to be a member of the Management Board, since he had for some time "followed the subject of the Green River Cove."

When the more than half a dozen Tryon PTA members had all arrived — and Green Creek was also represented — The Commission heard and responded to the several speakers who asked for additional funds from the County via an increased local tax.

Dr. Mark McCall, PTA Board Chairman from Tryon, asked that the "budget requests from our schools be supported by
