Weather Tuesday: high 90, low 66, humidity 42%. Wednesday morning was delightful.

According to WTYN only 299 of the air traffic controllers were back at work by 11 a.m. Wednesday. Some of the controllers shifts were not scheduled so it would not be known until this morning how many actually went back.

Mrs. Lillian Mills-Mosselle will autograph copies of "The Red Coats of the Blue Ridge" Friday from 11 to 12 noon at the Book Shelf. If you have a copy already, bring it in to be autographed.

A new law in North Carolina requires school boards to charge tuition to students from out of state, from out of the school district or those residing on military reservations. No minimum tuition charge is established by the law, but it says the rates may not exceed the amount of per capita local funding. The new law exempts any existing written agreements between boards of education, with or without tuition charges.

The summers don't seem to be slow and lazy any more. School opens in two weeks and it seems as if the children just got out of
