Weather Friday: high 58, low 37, hum. 35; Saturday: high 70, low 37, hum. 20%; Sunday: high 68, low 52, hum. 25%. Monday was another spring-like day.

It's beginning to look like spring now as the January Jasmine, jonquills, crocuses, breath of spring, etc. are blooming. Lots of plants have winter damage this year.

Interior Secretary James Watt, in what appeared to be a major policy reversal, said Sunday that the Reagan administration wants a moratorium on drilling and mining in wilderness areas until the end of the century.

The nation's governors Sunday rejected the administration's appeal that they consider President Reagan's "new federalism" program independent of budget issues.

Named to the Appalachian All-Tournament basketball team were Robert Nelson, Jeff Sherer and Tony Cunningham of the Tryon boys; Brenda Keys, Emily Sherer and Denise Booker of the Tryon girls and Tawana Rickman and Christa Pack of the Polk Central girls.

Tonight at 7 o'clock is a Microwave Cooking School at the

Tryon Educators Return From Colorado

A special training session was conducted in Lakewood, Colorado on February 11 and 12, for visiting educators from Tryon City Schools, Tryon, North Carolina. Participants included the Superintendent of Schools, Vernon Dusenbury, as well as Nancy Bollinger, Sally Jo Carter, Franklin McKaig, Kenny Spencer, Annette Stafford, and Frances Wray.

This group is now prepared to conduct staff development for other Tryon educators as the local school district prepares to implement PROJECT STAMM into the Tryon mathematics classrooms during the spring and fall of 1982. Tryon received special funds for this training session, materials and staff development.

Tryon schools were selected to receive an exemplary grant from the North Carolina Department of Education to adopt STAMM (Systematic Teaching and Measuring Mathematics). STAMM is an objective referenced mainstream program currently used K-12 in all Jefferson County Schools in Colorado (where it was developed) as well as being presently used in over 1000 schools in 41 states. STAMM features a careful management system of helping students acquire basic skills of
