Paint & Stain Additive Stops Carpenter Bees And Other Insects

A new insecticide in the form of a paint or stain additive kills insects, including carpenter bees on contact.

This new product, Di-All which is harmless to humans and pets is a liquid which can be added to exterior paints or stains.

Microscopic crystals form on the paint surface and are not detectable to the eye. Sticky pads on the feet of insects contact these crystals, causing death to the insects. Di-All is safe but should be used in a careful manner, washing skin surfaces where contacted.

Di-All kills for up to seven years since it is mixed thoroughly into the paint or stain.

Woodpeckers will rarely peck where no insect is embedded in the wood, so you eliminate this problem also. Available at Williamson's Paint Center, 134 N. Trade St., Landrum. adv. 7c.
