Hudson Wins Nomination

Ray Hudson won the second of two nominations for Transylvania County Board of Education in Tuesday's Democratic primary, but he may face a run-off.

Hudson, a graduate of Polk Central High School, is married to the former Becky McFarland. He has a master's degree in education from Western Carolina University and taught and coached for 12 years in the Transylvania School system.

He joined A. L. Williams, a national insurance company, in 1982 and was promoted to regional vice president in 1985.

"One of the things I am concentrating on," Hudson told the Asheville Citizen Thursday, "is the communication between the board, teachers, administration and superintendent. I don't think the school board is getting all the information they need to make a decision.

"To me, the present board doesn't really have any direction. We are in the 1990s, but I don't see anything really moving forward."

If there is no primary run-off, Hudson will run for office against the Republicans in November. Vernon Gardner, the man Hudson edged out for the nomination, said Thursday he was unsure if he would call for a run-off.
