The weather Wednesday: high 90, low 59, hum. 75%.

A note from the Curb Reporter: When I first moved to Tryon to take over this grand old newspaper, many people asked me to begin to take stands on issues.

I was reluctant, and did not plan to do so until much later in my tenure here.

I don't think I would have even on the school budget issues if it had been presented outright as the major cut in local school funding that it was.

If the board of commissioners had said, "We're singling the schools out for significant cuts," and explained clearly why, there would have been no need to do anything but report the facts.

But the facts were obscured in talk of "an increase," and the situation cried out for a more honest interpretation — call it comment or opinion.

I shared my opinions on the school budget six times, twice before the public hearing, three times up until the budget vote, and once after.

It will be a long time before I'll have another say about this matter or anything else. A long
