The weather Wednesday: high 74, low 56, hum. 85 percent and by 7 a.m. Thursday, .2 inches of rain had fallen.

Many, many people were mourning the death of John R. Knoblock this week. John died Sunday. He was 72.

A native of Haverville, Mass., he moved to Tryon in the 1960s and joined a real estate venture known as Richardson & Knoblock Real Estate. His career in real estate in the Thermal Belt area was outstanding.

Others in the industry this past week remembered Knoblock as a pioneer, and credited him with helping the area continue to blossom, and to be known for its graciousness.

"John understood the lifestyles offered by this community and he could help newcomers become involved in it," said Terri Dorsam and Earl Thompson of Coldwell Banker Town & Country Realtors. Knoblock worked with Coldwell Banker as a consultant in recent years.

"Realtors for years called him 'Mr. Real Estate.' His ethics were impeccable. He felt genuine personal concern for every client and customer he worked with,"

Watch Out For Dognappers Alert

The Foothills Humane Society is warning dog owners about a renewed threat to their pets. All of a sudden, there has been a significant increase in reports to the animal shelter of missing dogs. According to Nancy Pat Martin, president of the Society, "North Carolina has the largest market in the United States of dogs sold to research establishments and it is supplied in large part by stolen dogs."

Keep an eye on your dog and put an identity tag on its collar. If it is missing, here is what to do. Getting the word out is the most important thing. Phone the animal shelter (863-4444) to ask if it has been brought in and to report it missing. Check with the veterinarians to see if it has been hurt and brought in for treatment. Put an ad in the three local papers and on WTYN. Tell your neighbors, and keep looking.

The Humane Society maintains a bulletin board with notices of lost and found dogs and cats. Members pick up strays and injured animals, when notified or when they spot them along the road, and bring them to the Shelter. No animal brought to the Shelter is ever sold to a research establishment. Members will even help you look for your pet. All services of the Society are provided by volunteers and are financed by fund raisers and contributions.
