Road Given Name Of Luther Durham

A pillar of Polk County during his lifetime, the late Luther Durham was honored with a road name by the Polk County Board of Commissioners Monday night.

The commissioners held their last hearing on giving new road names before beginning a six-month moratorium on road name changes. The issue has been lingering for over a year as part of the county's preparation for Emergency-911 phone service.

Durham built the three-tenths of a mile long road in the shadows of Williams Mountain which connects Peniel Road and Golf Course Road. He did it to provide a short cut for school children headed to Columbus everyday.

"He (Luther Durham) was one of the best farmers ever lived in Polk County," said his son, Burley Durham. "Anybody who's been in Polk County over 20 years would remember Luther Durham."

Jim Cochran, Polk County emergency management coordinator, did.

"I remember riding to church with Luther Durham in a horse drawn wagon," Jim Cochran said. "He had a box built over his well where he kept cold watermelons for after church."

Some residents along the road argued for a different name, High Meadows Road. But the commissioners chose to honor

To Compete In State Geography Bee

Stephanie Bundschuh, a seventh grade student who won the Geography Bee at Tryon Elementary in early February, will compete in the State Geography Bee on April 5th in Durham.

To qualify for the State Bee, Bundschuh had to take a written test of sixty questions on both physical and cultural geography, including questions on current events. In Durham she will compete against some 100 winners from all over North Carolina. The winner of the State Geography Bee will enter the national finals.

Zoning Classification Added To Ordinance

Polk Countians who live along busy roadways now have a new tool to control the growth of their neighborhoods.

After a public hearing Monday night, the Polk County Board of Commissioners agreed to add a "neighborhood commercial district" zoning classification to the county's zoning ordinance.

The new district would limit some types of commercial development - those deemed too disruptive to residential areas - while allowing neighborhood services to be offered along main thoroughfares.

For instance, doctors offices would be allowed while car dealerships and drive-in movie theaters would not.

The new zoning classification was not applied to any area in the county, only added to the county's zoning ordinance
