29th District Attorney Alan Leonard was the subject of some not-so-happy conversation during Monday night's Tryon Town Council meeting. Councilmen were concerned that none of the Bryan's Store rioters were yet behind bars, even those who apparently assaulted police officers responding to the scene.

Leonard stopped by the Bulletin offices Thursday morning on his way to Polk County Superior Court, where he is trying a tragic child abuse case. He said Assistant District Attorney Will Cathey has dismissed some of the riot cases after consultation with Tryon Police Office Gail Nonamaker.

"She recommended that the charges that could not be proven be dismissed," Leonard said. "Most of the dismissed charged were 'cross warrants' taken out by riot participants on one another, each claiming to be in the right. It is usually impossible for a judge or jury to resolve these 'swearing' contests beyond a reasonable doubt."

Those riot cases that have

Local Buyers Hope To Purchase Red Fox On Courthouse Steps

Resolution Trust Corp. (RTC), the savings and loan bailout agency in charge of selling Red Fox Country Club, has been unable to reach agreement with an intended buyer, area residents say they have learned.

The RTC on Thursday could not answer a reporter's questions about the property without first conducting a two-day search. But Bob Bielaski, chairman of the interim board of The Club at Red Fox, said his organization has learned from its contacts within the RTC that the intended deal with Alan McCain has fallen through. Recent letters to Club
