The weather Wednesday, high 78, low 44, hum. 40 percent.

The rest of the story: We printed a communication Thursday from Benson Hodge critical of the county building inspection department. Today, in a story by Reen Smith, "Turnover In Building Inspection Office Worries Some", the county offers its response.

I hear you knocking: Workers with Angel Marketing and Advertising of Norcross, Ga. are nearly finished going door-to-door to homes in Tryon raising money for the Tryon Fire Department.

Assistant fire chief Billy Wall said Thursday that the company had reported a 60 percent success rate and should have over $1,000 for the department.

The company offers an 8x10 family portrait for a $20 donation, $10 of which goes to the fire department, Wall said. Purchases of additional prints are offered, but do not raise additional money for the fire department.

Although a fire tax pays most expenses, the firemen wanted additional money both for the auxiliary, and to reno-

Bulletin To Cost 25 Cents On Stand

The Tryon Daily Bulletin newsstand price will increase from 20 cents to 25 cents next Wednesday, April 15.

The extra nickel per copy will be used to help pay editorial costs, said Jeff Byrd, editor.

"In the last six months, several area writers have become strong contributors to the Bulletin," he said. "This small increase will ensure that we can continue to bring you the sports coverage of Patty Aldred, and the news and feature reporting of Claire Wharton, Reen Smith, Ceri Dando and others."

The Bulletin is available for home delivery for $35 a year, and single copies are available each day on 30 newsstands located throughout Tryon, Landrum, Columbus, Mill Spring, Pea Ridge, Green Creek, Saluda and Lynn.

Inside Today

With lots of turnover, and at least one disastrous construction situation, people are concerned about the Polk County Building Inspection Office. Inside today, Reporter Reen Smith asks county officials and builders about those concerns.

Cutting Her 90th Birthday Cake

Dorothy Zoulek of Green Creek was the guest of honor April 4th at a celebration of her 90th birthday at the Mill Creek Church of the Brethren. Zoulek is founder of Green Creek Organic Farms. About 50 persons showed up to wish her good cheer on her birthday.

Old Melrose Lodge, Restaurant Opening

Melrose Lodge has been purchased by Carolyn Wells of Hendersonville. Ms. Wells plans a June 1 opening of the restaurant as a first phase in returning the lodge to its place in Tryon as a lovely, historic country inn.

Carolyn Wells has 25 years experience in operating restaurants in Detroit, MI, and Bradenton, FL. She came to the mountains in 1973 and since has busied herself with restaurants and land development. She has also written cookbooks, given classes in food preparation and found time to raise four children.

Melrose Lodge was listed by Cathryn Lennon and sold by Jerrie Beresford, both of Tryon Properties.
