'The Promise Of Living'

Mary Davis, director of the Spring Concert, the annual musical offering presented by the Tryon Community Chorus has announced the theme of concert 1992 - The Promise of Living: Growing, Giving, Singing and Thanksgiving.

Preparing a program which will show the hope and fears, the strengths and weakness, the spirituality and humanity of all of us. Mrs. Davis has drawn from a deep treasure chest of musical composition. These range from Palestrina to our own complex century; from the formality of Europe to the high stepping, brash optimism of an emergent America. Some of it will make you want to "sing-along." Plan on getting your tickets early for the May 22, 23, 24 excitement at the Fine Arts Theater.

N.C. Honors Band - Best In State

Only band members earning first and second chair in District Band competition are eligible to audition for the North Carolina Honors Band. Tuba player Scott Culbreth, left, a senior at Polk Central, placed first out of 12 tuba players in recent statewide competition for the North Carolina Honors Band. In the same competition, alto saxophone player Danny Boles, at right, a ninth grader at Polk Central, placed sixth out of 12 alto saxophone players. Both will take part in the N.C. Honors Band at the University of North Carolina in Greensboro on April 25-26. Their band teacher at Polk Central is Keith Poole.

Living Lord's Supper Service

A Living Lord's Supper Service will be held Thursday, April 16th, at 7:30, in the sanctuary of Tryon First Baptist Church.

The service, under the direction of the Rev. Mary Potter. Using Leonardo daVinci's painting as a guide the Last Supper will be recreated. Men of the church, in costume, will portray Jesus and the Twelve Apostles.

Special lighting and narration will be utilized. When the Last Supper has been recreated, it will be spotlighted while the congregation observes the Lord's Supper. At the close of the service, worshipers, will leave in reverent silence and remembrance.

The public is invited to this service. A nursery will be provided.
