Out-Of-State Student Funding In '93 Budget

Polk County school administrators wiped some sweat off their brows this week after learning that they likely will not lose nearly $150,000 of state funding.

Officials with the N.C. State School Boards Association monitoring the state budgeting efforts say legislators have decided to study their options regarding out-of-state student funding.

Until a study is completed, the state will continue to count out-of-state students in its per pupil funding formula.

The state currently provides $3,200 to local school systems for each student enrolled. Polk County Schools enrolled 46 South Carolina students this year.

The Association of County Taxpayers (ACT) of Polk County has opposed state funding of out-of-state students as improper, although Lake Lanier families have enrolled their children in Tryon schools for generations.

Gov. Jim Martin's budget proposal called for eliminating all funding for out-of-state students. An estimated 400 out-of-state students attend North Carolina schools, at a cost of $1.2 million.

The Senate budget followed Martin's proposal, but the House budget left the funding in place and instead called for a

Green Creek Baptists Dedicate New Wing

On Sunday, June 28th at 3 p.m., the Rev. Carroll Page and the congregation of Green Creek First Baptist Church dedicated their new 8,000-square-foot multi-purpose building.

The new addition houses the church fellowship hall, adult Sunday school classrooms, a conference room and a music room. As part of the building project, the church also renovated existing facilities including children's Sunday school classrooms, the sanctuary and church offices.

The extensive renovation project took eight months to complete. Around 200 congregation members and visitors gathered inside the church on Coxe Road to participate in the dedication service.

Just before entering the new addition for an open house, the congregation watched as 102-year-old church member Mrs. Lusco Skipper cut the big yellow ribbon across the door. The Rev. Page praised the building committee and the entire congregation for the effort involved in completing the project. He said that future generations will thank them for having the foresight and faith to expand the church's facilities.

According to Deacon William Earl Barnette, Green Creek First Baptist Church was organized in 1797 under the leadership of Reverend John Blackwell. In
