Something About Ducks.

A poultry writer who "during the last six or eight years has raised nearly all the leading varieties of ducks in very limited accommodations," informs us that he has proved by experience that a tub or pail kept full of water is as good as a stream or pond. He has won numberless prizes upon ducks since they were hatched; has tried ground, brick, and plank floors, and finds that the two former bring on paralysis, rheumatism, and many other complaints. The floor of his duckhouse is of inch plank, raised one foot or more from the ground on stone piers. This prevents dampness, and ter the floor is covered with a thin bedding of hay; in summer with sawdust, which absorbing all edors keeps the air sweet and pure. When the bedding becomes foul it is swept out and the floor washed with hot water. A SAD INCIDENT.—One of the most pathetic reminders of the recent Fall River disaster is the habit of a woman who insanely believes that they are alive. Every day, when the factory bells are ringing for dinner, the woman who saw her three daughters borne away to be buried, that Sunday, takes a tin pail, as she used to do, and starts for Granite Mills No. 1. Sometimes her neighbors divert her attention by telling her that it isn't bell time, but, other days, she walks to the place where the mill stood, sees nothing that she can recognize, turns in a dazed way, and goes to her deserted home again.

A Busy Place.

An exchange says: "Thousands of persons pass through the city of Fall River, Mass., with no accurate knowledge of its industries, and with very little idea of its manufacturing and commercial importance. The terminus of the Boston and Fall River railway. and the landing place of a popular line of New York steamers, travelers catch only glimpses of the city in their nasty transfer from boat to cars or from cars to boat, in the dusky morning or when evening shadows have fallen. The recent destruction by fire of the Granite Mills, and the sad loss of life in connection, have awakened special interest in this important manufacturing center. Fall River was incorporated as a village more than seventy years ago, and as early as 1813 a cotton factory was built, 'Quequechau"-a place of falling water-was the old Indian name of the settlement. The little stream from which the town derives its present name is the outlet of the Watuppa Ponds, and in the last half mile of its course has a descent of more than 130 feet, forming a remarkable water-power. The chain of ponds, however, is even more valuable than the river, furnishing abundant water for the generation of steam, which at this day has in a great measure superseded water-power. The commodious harbor of Fall River, at the entrance of Taunton river into Mount Hope bay, greatly conduces to its prosperity and rapid growth. Cotton manufacturing is the chief industry of the town, although there are factories of various kinds. Within the last five years Fall River has more than doubled the capital invested in its cotton mills, and now the nominal capital is stated to be $14,870,000, while the actual investment is much greater. There are now thirty-four incorporated companies for the manufacture of cotton goods, chiefly prints; forty-four mills, with 1,269,788 spindles; and these mills, with something like 15,000 operatives, annually convert about 135,000 bales of cotton into 332,000,000 vards of Col. Cochrane is Master of the State Grange of cloth. Statistics show that over onesixth of all the cotton spindles in the United States, and nearly one-fourth of those in New England, are concentrated in Fall River. The operatives are chiefly Irish, English, and French Canadians, and are noted for their thrift and industry. Many of them now have a pecuniary interest in the new corporations, some of which count their stockholders by scores, or even by hunshore for miles around is strewed with the dreds. Fur Trimmings.

Fur borders will be very fashionable this winter, a fashion journal says, for trimming cloaks, sacques, polonaises, and costumes. Imported velvet, matelasse, and camel's-hair garments have deep fur collars and much wider borders than those used last winter. Furriers say that these wide borders will be confined to furs of close short pile, as the light long fleece of such fur as the silver-fox loses its fluffy beauty when left in a compact mass. As this fur is very costly, it is a fortunate thing that it looks prettiest in its narrow widths, such as only half an inch of pelt, which will make about three inches of trimming on its right side. Silver-fox borders cost from $12 to $15 a yard, and are probably the most stylish of all them, the sergeant, being killed and all the fur trimmings. Garments bordered others being badly wounded. made of the material of the garment, and trimmed on each end with a fur border. Chinchilla trimming is also in yard. This is also much used for trimming children's cloaks. Black marten borders cost from $2 to $4, according to their width. Gentlemen will have their long Ulster overcoats of gray and black Elysian beaver cloth trimmed with a border of gray krimmer or of black Persiani. The white grebe trimmings so pretty for children's wraps are given a new effect by being cut across the skin so that the brown bars surface. These cost $5 a yard.

Fur linings are considered soft, warm, and luxurious for carriage wraps of black gros grain or cashmere, and fer jackets of silk or velvet. An objection to them, however, is that they are lining the large circulars used as carriage wraps, and from $45 to $60 is asked for lining the smaller garments with sleeves.

AT THE BAR. - A Boston lawyer sends this: Twenty years ago, just after I was admitted to the bar in Maine, I called one evening on the young lady who has since become my wife. I made friends with her little brother Addie, and when he ran out of the room heard him ask his mother confidentially : " Mamma, do you think angels' wings are strong enough to carry lawyers to heaven?" The good woman's answer was lost in the "Hush, dear!" but in the battle of life since then the ques tion has come back more than once.

A BOUNTIFUL HUSBAND. - How comfortable for a young wife to feel that her husband is a bountiful provider, and that she will never want for the necessaries of life. THURMAN ON FARMING. "

The Senator's Address to the Maryland Agricultural and Mechanical Associa-

Senator Thurman, of Ohio, delivered

n address at the State Fair before the faryland Agricultural and Mechanical Association, Mr. Thurman quoted numerous, authorities on the subject of agriculture, tracing from the records of Greece, Rome, Egypt, India and China the gradually increasing interest in the productions of the soil down to the nineteenth century, the era of scientific treatment of steam plows, reaping machines and fertilizers. We find in our libraries, he said, works on agriculture, written before the Christian era, from which instruction may be derived by the most enlightened and skillful farmer of to-day. What should be the size of a farm; what its proportions of arable pasture, meadow and woodland; what crops and manures are best suited to different soils, what advantages are derived from open and underground drainage; when should irrigation be practiced and what are its results; what are the benefits derived from land lying fallow, from deep and frequent plowings; from a rotation of crops; from turning under green rasses; from burning the stubbleare questions, among many, discussed in these works, and which are subjects of yet more elaborate discussion after a lapse of more than two thousand years. I do not propose to discuss the liminishing from year to year, as is conclusively shown by our census reports. Thus, of the whole number of farms n 1860 nearly 41 per cent, were farms of less than fifty acres each; of the whole number in 1870 nearly 50 per cent. contained less than fifty acres each. In 1860, 70; per cent. were un-der 100 acres; in 1860, 78 per cent. Between 1860 and 1870 the number of farms of three acres and under ten was more than doubled; those of ten acres and under twenty increased from 162,. 178 to 294,607; over 81 per cent. Those of twenty scres and under fifty from 616,558 to 847,614, equal to 371 per cent. nearly; those of fifty and under 100 acres from 608,878 to 754,251, 24 per cent, nearly; those of 100 and under 500 from 487,041 to 565,054, equal to 16 per cent,; while those of 500 acres and under 1,000 decreased from 20,316 to 15,893, and those of 1,000 acres and upward fell from 5,634 to 3,720. It is multiply much more rapidly than the large ones, and that the smaller they are the greater is the ratio of their increase, while the number of the very large ones, instead of increasing, is undergoing a rapid diminution. The economist will find in these facts some alleviation of his fear that our lands will be too much engrossed, while the statesman, observing how large a proportion of farms are owned by their cultivators, will see in this happy circumstance one of the most powerful conservators of peace, order, freedom and good and stable government.

Transits of Venus take place at intervals of eight and one hundred and five years. The last were in 1761-1779. The next will be in December, 1874are lengthwise on the white feathery 1882. The latter will be visible in this country. Transits are important phenomena, as they furnish an indirect but accurate method of ascertaining the sun's parallax.
