THE COTTON CROP.

The Concordia Intelligencer, of 16th inst. says: It is now beyond doubt that the crop of Cotton in the States of Louisiana and Mississippi, this year, will be a short one. The crop is now more "backward" in all payts of both of these States than it has been, in the same time of the growing season, for a great many years. Accounts from all parts of Louisiana and Mississippi concur in confirming this impression. On the "hills," the frost of April began the acls. For saie at the lowest .ales, by damage, the lice continued it, and the unfavorable weather of the past three weeks has thoroughly darkened the prospect of good crops, while to the same causes, on lowland plantations may be added the terrible one of cholera, which has thinned the forces in the fields while during the generally prevailing sickness and frequent rains that we have had, the grass has taken possession of the cotton fields
