Music and dancing are often referred to in the Scriptures. David must have been initiated in early life into the sweet mysteries of the harp. Dancing was commonly an exhibition by hired persons for the amusement of the company. Sometimes it was of a religious character. Miriam breis.

A Jewish play of children was to blind-fold one of their companions, strike him gently, and make him guess who did it. This is the only play to which I find any ullusion.

Adoption was very common in the East Adopted children took the name and became heirs of the family who received them

Children were promised in marriage at a very early age. Sometimes an agree-ment was made by the parents in writing, and sometimes a piece of silver was ex-changed between the parties. The little betrothed then remained in her father's tiome many years.

Children were allowed to attend in marringe ceremonies.

Children were frequently sold when their parents were in poverty. The Essenes were a Jowish sect, who did not marry. They adopted children and instructed them. Youths at school sat at the feet of their teachers, and were allowed to ask questions. The Jews were not Thy present one is rather fragile." surprized at Jesus' being in the temple, as that was a common custom, but were "astonished at his answers."

I was about fourteen years of age, I was commended by all for the love 1 had to learning, on which account the high priest and principal men of the city frequently came to me together, in order to know my opinion about the accurate points of the law."

Domestic prayers were said on the houes-top, in a kind of turrett, called alijah. It was a beautiful idea, thus to worship God in view of his creation.

Disobedience to parents was threatened by Moses to be punished with death. Trayellers say, that all who pass by Absalom's pillar, throw a stone at it to shew their borror of a son who rebelled against his
