

Help Motivate Students - Math Expert Says

Teachers can help to motivate their students for positive learning experiences, by varying the way they work with individual differences, an Ohio State University professor emphasized here this morning.

about time as a variable, rather than as a constant," said Jack Frymier, the keynote speaker for a two-day statewide mathematics conference at A&T State University.

"We give assignments as teachers and we expect all of the pupils to master the assignments in the same length of time," said Frymier. "But motivation is a conception of human relationships without conditions."

Frymier's addresses opened the conference attended by more than 500 teachers from all over the state.

Two of the state's outstanding college teachers were honored Friday night by the North Carolina Council of Teachers of Mathematics during the meeting.

The new awards are named in honor of the late Professor W.W. Rankin of Duke University. Initial winners of the awards were Rankin posthumously, and Dr. Marjorie Lee Browne, a retired North Carolina Central University teacher.

Rankin taught at Duke for 26 years before his retirement in 1956. He was a pioneer in the development of mathematics education institutes.

He was cited by the Internal Revenue for his role in developing materials for use in teaching high school pupils how to file income tax returns.

Dr. Browne served as chairman of the Department of Mathematics at North Carolina Central from 1949 to 1970. She was the first black woman to receive a Ph.D. in mathematics from the University of Michigan.

She initiated the first National Science Foundation Institute for the retraining of junior and senior high school mathematics teachers at a predominately-black institution.

appointed the Defense Supply Agency's inspector for Europe at the huge Wiesbaden Air Force Base here.

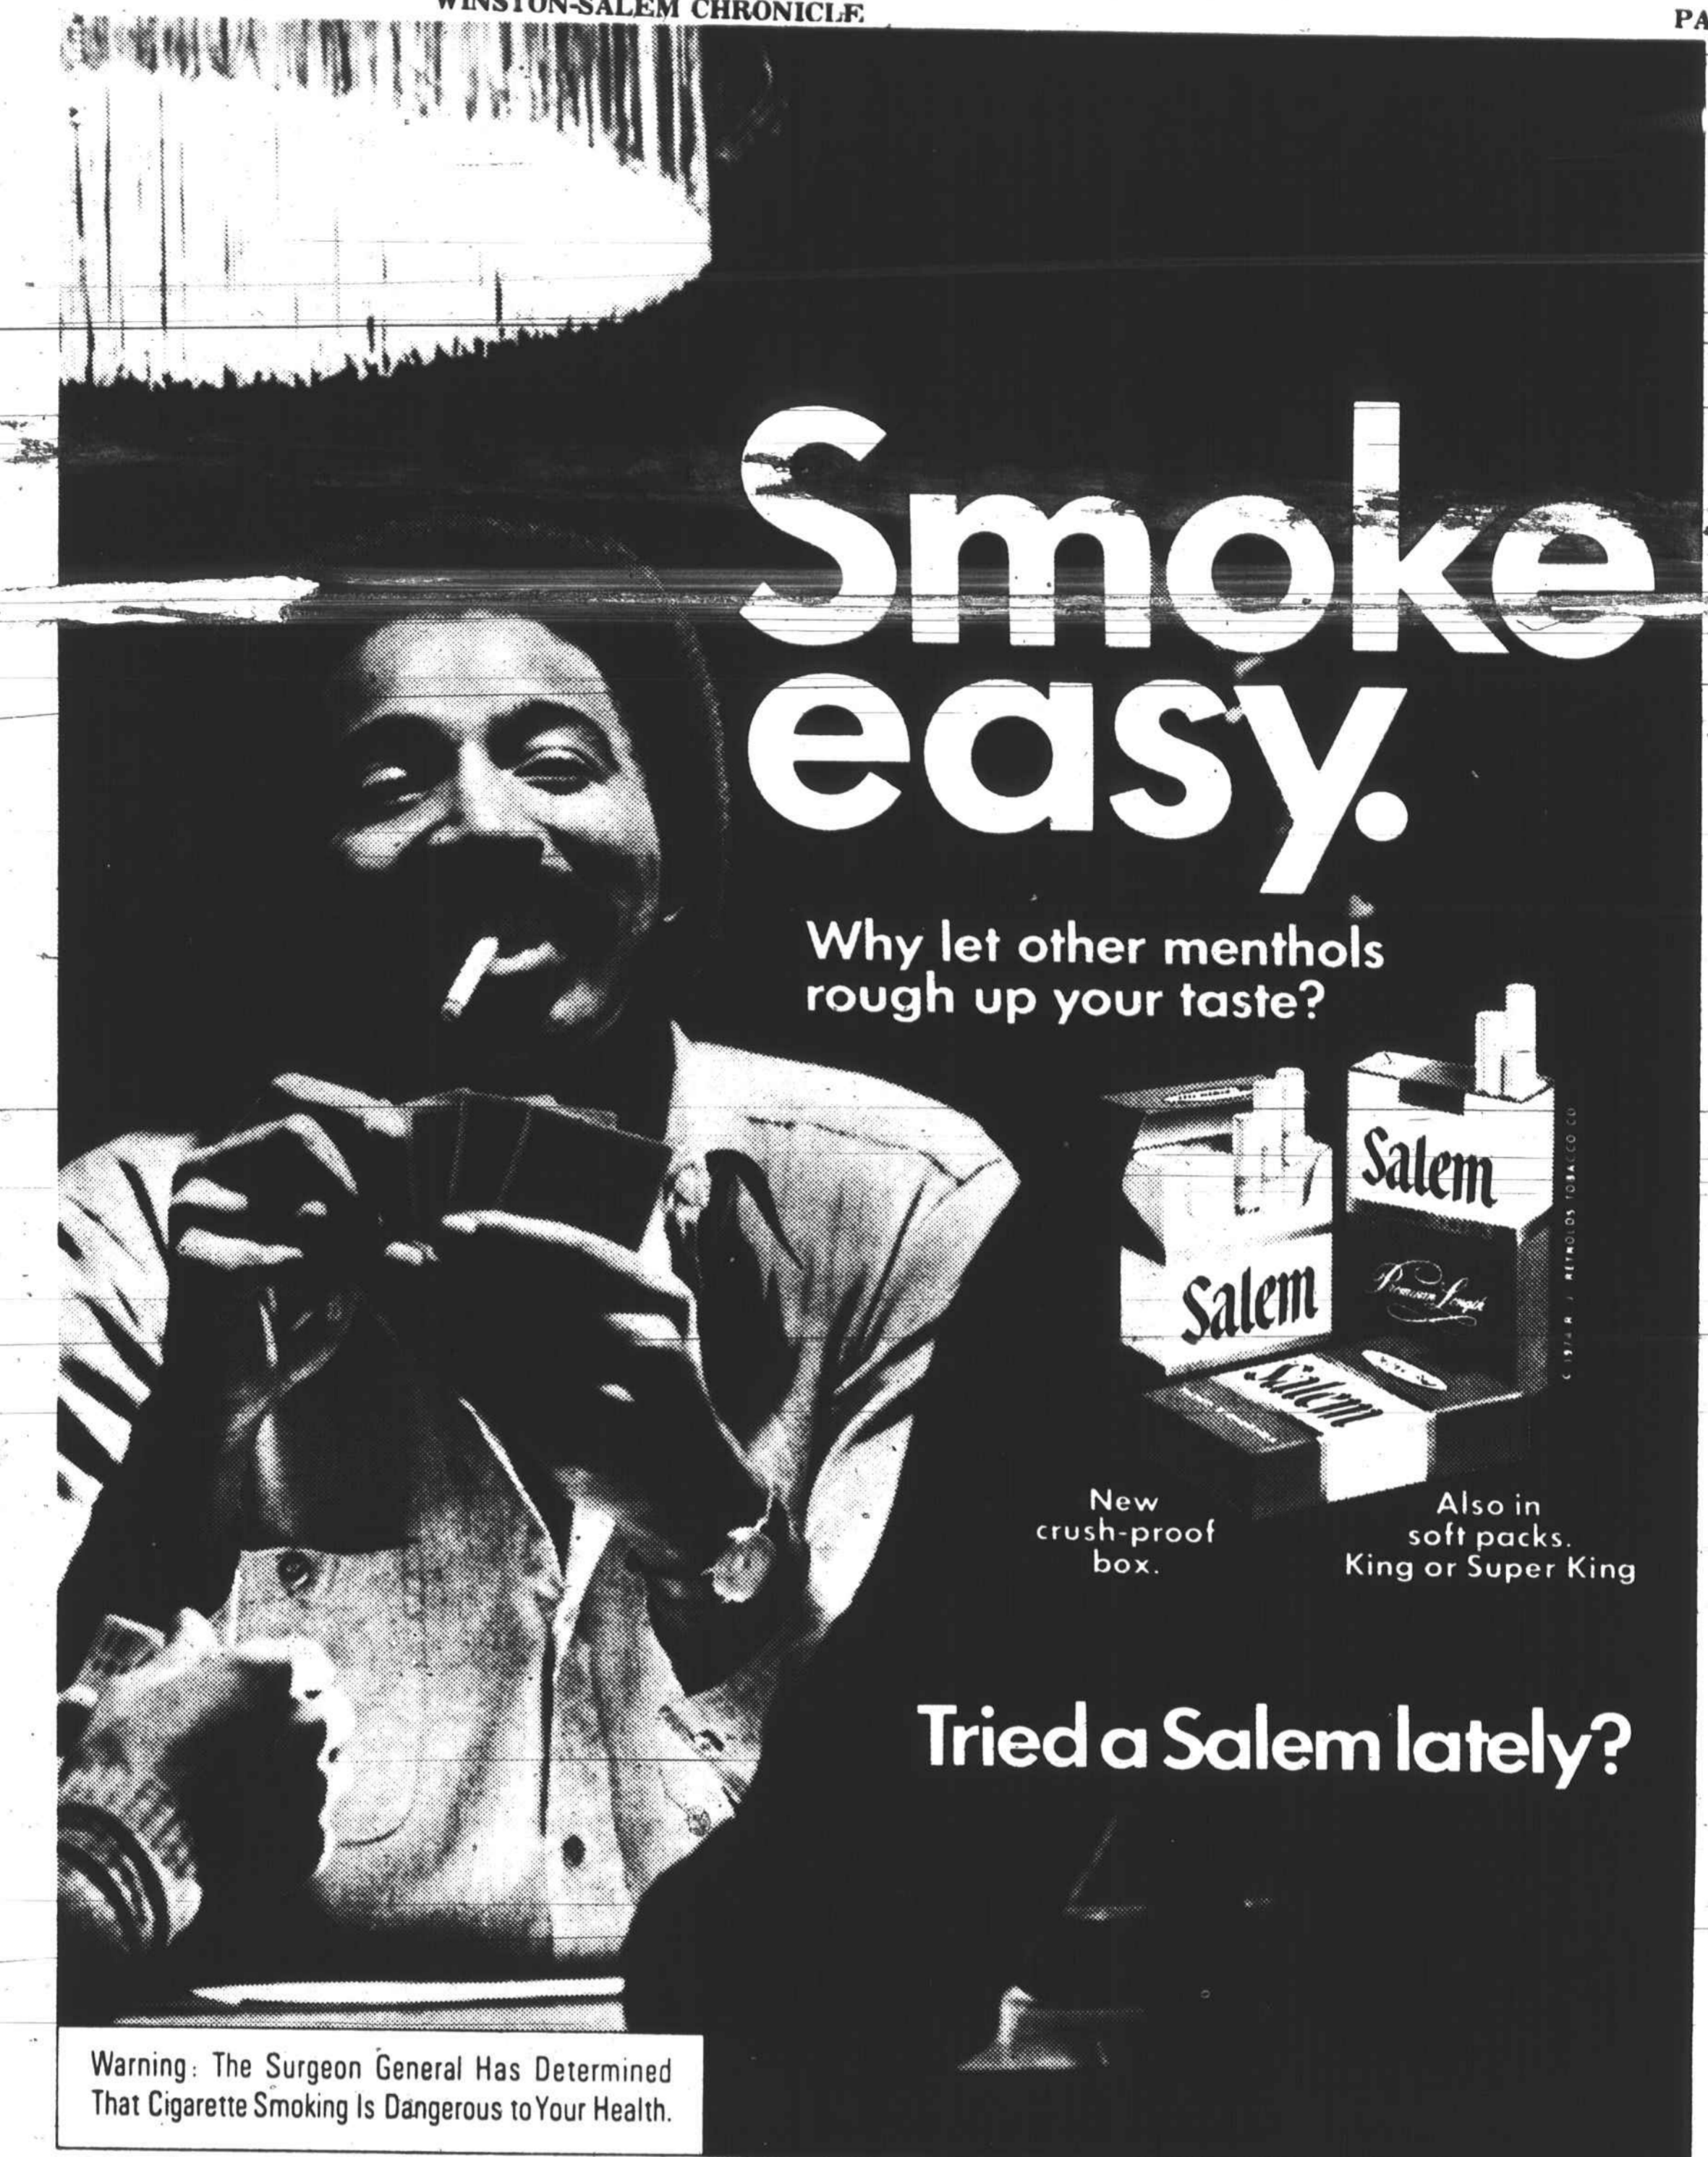

Cheek formerly commanded a squadron in Minnesota and the 4756th Supply Squadron at Tyndall Air Force Base in Florida. He spent more than three and a half years in Vietnam.

As an Air Force supply officer, Cheek served in Morocco, Saudi Arabia, Youngston, Ohio, Langley Air Force Base, the Philippines. He was also a deputy commander for material in Greenland and served on the Headquarters Aerospace Defense Command staff at Colorado Springs, Colo.

Cheek's love of drill and ceremony date back to his early years with the Boy Scouts in Greensboro.

After entering A&T, he quickly became a member of the university's crack Air Force Drill Team, which he commanded during his sophomore and junior years. During his senior year, Cheek became cadet commander of the entire Air Force ROTC battalion.

Col. Cheek is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fleming T. Cheek of 705 S. O'Henry Blvd. in Greensboro. He is married to the former Geraldine W. Parrish.

Action 4-H Club Is Growing

The Action 4-H Club began in 1971. It started with ten members and three leaders. It has since increased to forty members and four leaders.

We received our club charter in February of this year.

We have been involved in many activities some of which are: 4-H Church Sunday, fund raising projects, trips and picnics, Dress Revues and talent shows. We recently had a hobo dinner for our club.

We hold our meetings every third Thursday in each month at 7:30 p.m.
