

WINSTON-SALEM CHRONICLE

Vol. II, No. 19

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C.

★ 20¢ ★

Saturday January 10, 1976

'We Ain't Ready Yet'

Goodwin Tells Blacks To Utilize Resources

Rewards Offered In Two Murders

Governor Jim Holshouser today offered two rewards of $2,500 each for information leading to the solution of the murder of Mrs. Patsy T. Roberson of Kernersville and Mrs. Lillian Rose Phillips Callahan and her two children of Lumberton.

On November 20, 1975, a small box was found at the Roberson residence. The box contained a bomb that exploded and killed Mrs. Roberson as she opened it.

Mrs. Callahan, 21, and her two children -- Sidney Lou Callahan, 16 months, and Samuel G. Callahan, Jr., age 3 -- were last seen as they left their home on the evening of September 21, 1975. On November 19, the remains of

See MURDERS Page 8

Board Mem Is Charged-Hearing Set

A preliminary hearing for Beaufort O. Bailey, who was charged last week with driving under the influence and carrying a concealed weapon, will be January 13 in Forsyth County District Court.

Bailey, a member of the Winston-Salem/Forsyth County School Board was arrested shortly after 5 a.m. last Saturday.

According to police reports, Bailey, whose address is listed as 112 E. 27th Street was arrested shortly after police were sent to the 27th Street address in response to a

See BAILEY Page 3

Rev. Goodwin

Rev. Gill

by James Smith
Staff Writer

With a stern look of determination in his eye, Dr. K. O.P. Goodwin told an audience of several hundred people Thursday that before Blacks could be counted, they must learn to outreason society.

Dr. Goodwin was speaking at the annual celebration of the Emancipation Proclamation which was held at Mount Zion Baptist Church, of which he is the pastor.

Goodwin continued by telling the audience that since this is the Bicentennial year and that Blacks have seemingly not been counted, he hopes that during the next 200 years, they would.

Even though the purpose of the meeting was the fact that on Jan. 1, 1893, President Abraham Lincoln freed the slaves, Goodwin told the audience, "we ain't ready yet."

He further told his audience that it was high time for Blacks to utilize their sources and for them to start pooling their money in order to back up their mouths.

"We've got to have money and it must be used wisely and well," he said.

"We look prosperous and intelligent on the outside,-- but, we've got to be able to back up our mouths.

Furthermore, "we're strong on criticism, but we're short on accomplishments."

The local Emancipation Association, of which Goodwin is president, used as their theme for this year, "A voteless people, a hopeless people."

Before Goodwin's speech, music was furnished by the spiritual choir of First Baptist Church and the J. Ray Butler Choir of Shiloh Baptist Church.

Both choirs helped set the pace for the program and at several points, it looked as though the people were having a regular Sunday morning service.

Throughout the audience, shouts of "Amen" could be heard. Several persons began to stand and give oral testimonies.

The response to the music, needlessly to say, was very good. They particularly enjoyed the J. Ray Butler Choir's rendition of "Previous Memories" which was led by Marlene Joyner. It seemed that the more she put herself into the music, the more the

See GOODWIN Page 2

'God Didn't Tell Me I Needed A Permit'

Street Preacher Arrested-Jailed

by James Smith
Staff Writer

"God didn't tell me that I needed a permit," said Sister Carol Little.

Sister Little recently made that statement when she refused to take an oath in District Court where she was charged with conducting an open air meeting without a permit.

The arresting officer, Donald L. Scales, said Sister Little was arrested along with Sylvia Boyd and Bishop Ernest Davis.

Scales said both women approached Davis, who was preaching in front of the Forsyth County Courthouse and began arguing with him.

Scales said he didn't know which one, but one of the women said that Davis had to be ordained from God to

See STREET Page 2

A group of youngsters visiting the Nature Science Park are delighted by the newly hatched chicks in the Farm Science Room, currently under construction. When completed, the exhibit will show how farmers use scientific principles to raise successful crops and animals. The Nature Science Park is located on Museum Drive off Hanes Mill Road. It is open free to the public from 9-5 Monday-Saturday and 1-5 Sunday. (Nature Science Park photo by Connie Larkin.)