Carter's Cabinet Members

policies. Minorities barred from membership find their career prospects limited because they're cut off from contacts with their white peers.

The real focus should not be on Judge Bell -- he's resigning from his clubs. The real issue should be the continued existence of discriminatory practices by private clubs whose "social" aspects also involve informal decision-making that affects many areas of our lives.

It should be recognized that many people who think of themselves as liberal and as enlightened on race belong to clubs that bar Jews and blacks from membership. I know lots of prominent people, among them many I count as friends, who belong to clubs that are segregated. New York and Washington are full of such clubs and it might be more graceful for some of Judge Bell's critics to resign from their own clubs before casting stones.

Perhaps that's an issue that should be on the Attorney-General's agenda -- an investigation of segregated clubs with a view to determining whether any of them benefit from governmental concessions in violation of laws that bar discrimination.

Such an investigation might help keep the harsh glare of publicity on the undemocratic practices still common to the higher echelons of our society.
