Poetic Dimensions

Readers: The "Almighty Hawk" has really been flying high and strong over the twin city within the past few days but he has not blown away or frozen your desire to keep writing. Boasting the coldest temperatures in decades, I'm sure that as any "oldtimer" would say as the "hawk" swooped in ... yes, we've met ...

Before
by Freda Williamson c. 1977
Yes we met before ...

Long before the galaxies twinkled,
Through the misty dusk with star dots.
Before man suckled life giving breath,
And stalked his prey ... TIME.
Before the oceans and seas roared,
With the tide rushing to wind swept shores.
Before the birds were taught to sing
Their vibrant songs of innocence
Before the trees were blown,
With the winds of a turbulent earth.

We met ... we were, all that is ...

Then,
Time began to stalk man.
It stripped him of sensibilities,
Maimed his thoughts, stifled his being,
... and ours.

Until another time ... another place
We met again:

Now, just in time for the coldness ...

Winter's Coldness
[Excerpt] by A. Wall
Winter's coldness is upon us --
Boasting 32 and below --
The pipes are frozen, the power has failed --
And around lies a blanket of snow!

Walking on ice can be hazardous --
Especially if you fall --
And break in two your weary bones
The doctor you must call!

So chilly and cold is the wind --
That whistles through the trees.
Alas, the schools have closed for days --
No teaching of ABC's.

The icicles hang like knives
Piercing the chilling cold --
Of the coldest nights in years and years
That a city could behold!

So snuggle up inside your coat
And keep the "Jack Frost" out --
Wave hello to "Frosty" the snowman
As you rush about!
B-r-r-r!!

Social Whirl

Biggers, Mr. Eugene Hart and Mrs. Norfleet also came. There was over 10 choices of hors d'oeuvres spread on the buffet style table. They included miniature turkey salad filled rolls, canapes, relish and pickle trays, cheeses in a variety, caviar, and of course a choice of beverages from Kool-Aid to Mai Tai(s). It was truly an affair with hospitality at its best! The affair was enjoyed by all.

HISTORY- MAKING BLACK HAPPENINGS:

BALTIMORE, MARYLAND—Congressman Parren Mitchell, newly elected chairman of the Congressional Black Caucus had scarcely announced that the Black Caucus had received Carter assurances of black "appointments to the Cabinet" when the hope of appointments became the occasion of monumental "disappointment." Left out on a shaky limb were black Mayors Kenneth Gibson of Newark and Coleman Young of Detroit who had defended the new president's integrity as the cabinet selection process unfolded.

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS—Chicago's black Alderman Wilson Frost claimed the right to occupy the deceased Mayor Richard J. Daley's seat by virtue of his being president pro tem of the City Council. Frost, in a later City Council

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Chief Justice Warren Burger pressed his plea for judicial salary hikes and for more federal judges, again with no mention of the gross lack of black males and females among the federal judges.

PROVO, UTAH—Research of a university professor has suggested the adverse affects of teacher prejudice against all males, both black and white, in the nation's public schools. Such research bolsters the black contention that bias of all kinds unduly impedes black learning in our schools.

(Please see the MONITOR Microscope, now an expanded and regular feature in the New National BLACK MONITOR, for an in-depth analysis of these and other black events.)
