Jobs Scarce For Blacks In State Government

Raleigh, N.C. [CCNS] - Employment of blacks in policy-making and non-policy making jobs in state government is the primary objective of the North Carolina Black Democratic Leadership Caucus. Caucus members having met twice with Governor James Hunt requesting implementation of affirmative action hiring and 34 policy-making appointments for blacks, met last weekend at St. Augustine's College for progress reports.

Caucus Chairperson Clarence Lightner, former Mayor of Raleigh, and Representative H.M. Michaux of Durham brought a gloomy report of no blacks being appointed to the Advisory Budget Commission. Michaux said Hunt had promised that a black would be appointed to the important commission, which has never before had a black appointee. The Caucus executive committee sent three names to the Governor, "and the thing that disturbs me most is that we did not know that the Governor was not going to appoint a black until we read it in the paper," Michaux said.

Lightner said that he had talked to the Governor who explained that political pressure to re-appoint three commissioners and to appoint others were great and the Governor said that he could not appoint a black.

When told of the disappointment, many of the caucus members had comments that could not be published. Members agreed to send Hunt

Wilmington 10 Case Under Question

FBI Ordered To Investigate

Washington, D.C. [CCNS] - The U.S. Justice Department has ordered the FBI to look into the possibility that law enforcement officials violated the civil rights of the Wilmington 10 during the investigation of that case. It appears that the investigation will cover actions by North Carolina and Wilmington city officials as well as the role of another federal agency, the Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Division of the Treasury Department. The role of ATF agent William Walden in the episode was described in Allen Hall's recantation, which stated that he (Hall) was instructed to commit perjury by the prosecutor and his assistant along with state and federal law enforcement officials.

Last week a second prosecution witness, Eric Junious, now 17, recanted his testimony. He stated that he was given a minibike and a job in return for his testimony.

No motion has been filed by defense attorneys based on Eric Junious's recantation as yet.

Meanwhile, after six months of deliberating, Magistrate Logan Howell of the U.S. District Court denied the motion for bail for the Wilmington 10, pending a decision on their habeas corpus petition.

The motion for bail had been filed last August based on the recantation of prosecution witness Allen Hall.

In effect, Howell stated that the 10 would have to go back through state courts in order to exhaust their state remedies on the question of Allen Hall's recantation. He further stated that he felt it was necessary to allow the state courts to correct the alleged wrongs because of the allegations and accusations made against the state courts by supporters of the Wilmington 10.

Wilmington 10 defense attorney James E. Ferguson II, of Chambers, Stein, Ferguson and Becton, stated that he would file a brief calling for a post-conviction hearing in Pender County

Stranded In N.C. Family Finds A Home

by Rudy Anderson
Staff Reporter

Not long ago an Alabama family of seven set out for Danville, Va. in pursuit of a job the father had heard was available with the railroad. They never reached Virginia and for about a week their lives here in North Carolina were a big question mark.

Dan Temple, his wife Shirley, and their five children left Parrish, Ala., on a tip from a friend that a good paying job with Atlas Railroad Company was available in Danville.

Temple and his family left with everything they had -- an old trunk, a suitcase, and an old television set. He loaded it all in the family car, a 1970 Plymouth Fury, which he says was not working that well before they began their trip.

The Temples ran into trouble when they got to Salisbury, N.C. First the car's water pump blew. After it was

James D. Grant works on an exhibit at the Nature Science Park

Grant To Teach At Science Park

Exhibit design and construction is perhaps the most important behind-the-scenes activity at the Nature Science Park. For every exhibit presented to the public, untold hours of planning, sketching, cutting, nailing, gluing, painting, lettering and silkscreening have gone on in the development area.

One of the people responsible for this production is James D. Grant, an art graduate of North Carolina A&T who also attended Pratt Institute in New York. Grant has been involved in every phase of exhibit production since he joined the Nature Science Park staff two years
