

Poetic Dimensions

Readers: This week the talented young poets in Miss Karan Poole's 5th grade class "wrote it all down" and produced some dynamic "Cinquains." Without further delay let's hear about...

Winter by Kathy Lasley Age 11
 Winter has snow
 The snow is very soft
 The flakes drift down onto houses
 It's pretty!

A Bear by Mike Foy, Age 10
 What is a bear?
 A hairy, scary, huge
 Smart, lazy, fearless animal
 Mean too!

My Dad by Todd Holleman Age 10
 My dad so kind and good-
 He gets me what I need,
 And says every single day
 "God's Good!"

Trees by Rusty Peacock Age 10
 Some trees are tall
 Some trees are very short
 Some trees are just plain beautiful-
 Trees yea!

The Skunk by Mike Casey Age 10
 It really stinks
 Never get around it,
 Don't make it made or you
 Will stink!

The Cat by Dianna Humberger Age 10
 Cats are furry
 They can be black and white
 Or even brownish gray and white
 They're cute!

A Sheep by Shannon Craft Age 11
 A sheep's
 Fur is rough and wooly.
 It's color is creamy white
 It's tail is stubby and short.

Now, we zip into a bit of "Color Poetry" - try these on for size!

Green Is...by M. Foy
 Green is a cat's eye when it is night
 Green is the color of a high-flying kite
 Green is a leaf on a summer tree,
 Green is a lima bean or a green pea,
 Green is a monster so ugly and mean
 Green is a potful of delicious string beans.
 Green is a dill pickle so juicy and sour
 Green is the stem of an opening flower!

Black by K. Lasley
 When you see black
 It usually means that a rainstorm is coming!
 Black is a symbol of death, fights, or
 Just it being itself!
 Black may seem blank
 But the thing I like best is
 A glossy sleek stallion
 Pawing in the air!

Red by S. Craft
 Red is bold
 Like being in the cold
 Your cheeks get red-
 Red as a cherry.
 When you get cold
 You might head for the bed,

A red nose may give you a cold
 And you mother will say,
 "I told you so!"
