"Black pride must be accompanied by unity. Further, it is not enough to be young, gifted and Black, but young, gifted, Black and educated."

The aforementioned quote is one of Chancellor H. Douglas Covington of Winston-Salem State University last Sunday as he addressed an audience at New Bethel Baptist Church during its 26th annual celebration of Race Progress Day and the 53rd Anniversary of the Effort Club of the church.

Using as a theme: "A Salute To Winston-Salem State University," Dr. Covington cited many instances of progress made by the Black race. According to Covington, "Progress can be defined as not only how far we've come as a race, but also how far we've got to go." With each statement concerning the progress of the Black race many instances of the progress of WSSU was also mentioned.

clude 1 for the pastor, Dr. Jerry Drayton, 1 membership for the club, and 1 for the church.

The purpose of the Effort Club is to assist the church in any category that they're needed. The Effort Club has been most instrumental in purchasing aids such as copiers, mimeograph machines and other necessary equipment for the church. Dr. Drayton was presented a combination calculator-copier by the club.

Incidentally, Race Progress Day was organized by Mrs. Jerry Drayton and Dr. Covington is the first local speaker to address the club on this occasion. A reception was held in the lower auditorium after the program.
