Rev. L. B. Speas Given Appreciation Service

Last Sunday was designated "Speas Day" at Bethania A. M. E. Zion Church in honor of Rev. Lester B. Speas, the pastor of the church, and his wife Lillian. An oil portrait of Rev. Speas was presented to him at the program. The portrait was the work of Mrs. Thelma E. Small, a member of the church.

Several guest churches were present and tributes were given from various ministers. Numerous clubs and organizations of the church gave tributes to Rev. Speas and his wife.

Rev. Speas, who was honored for his outstanding contributions to the church and his ministry, began his call to the ministry in 1941. His pastoral period has been spent entirely within the Western N.C. Conference of the A.M.E. Zion Church. He has spent 25 years on the Winston-Salem District and has been the pastor of Bethania A.M.E. Zion Church for 10 years.

Rev. Speas has pastoral 14 churches in various counties, including Yadkin, Surry, Forsyth, Wilkes, Davie, Catawba and Mecklenburg.

The exciting world of sports holds the attention of the adult as well as the young person. Many of us have seen great players in the football world. Quarterbacks like Roger Staubach face the tragedies as well as the triumphs. How they face the challenge of life in the world of sports is important. As we sit before the TV screen, we wonder how they do it? What is their private life really like? In the book ROGER STARUBACH: FIRST DOWN, LIFETIME TO GO, you can read about this great quarterback of the Dallas Cowboys. Share with the young people in your life these Clues To Good Reading. This is the account of how a tiny girl, born in the ghetto, having spinal meningitis at age 3 turned into an Olympic gold medalist. Share with the young people in your life these Clues To Good Reading. One of the most outstanding stories in print today is the personal testimony of Madeline Jackson. Meet and these men and women have met the challenge of life in the world of sports.
