proached some people in Winston," Sansom told the Chronicle. "We're not but we prefer not to have them out there."

"Under the assumption that the group couldn't get Wachovia out there (East Winston)," Sansom continued. "Had one been out there, the people wouldn't have come to us in the first place."

Black citizens in Winston-Salem had asked Wachovia for more than the last 10 years about the possibility of putting a branch in the East Winston Community with no success, said participants in the Tuesday meeting.

Newell said she told the Wachovia officials that the group was still in support of Mechanics and Farmers locating a branch in the city.

"I told the officials that we were committed to having a black financial institution on the East part of town," Newell said. "It would be a source of pride for us and we want it."

Ruffin told the Chronicle that Wachovia would not try to block Mechanics and Farmers Bank from coming to Winston.

"We would never try to block a bank," Ruffin said. "Mechanics and Farmers is a good bank, a very good bank and is one of our customers."

The proposed site for the Mechanics and Farmers Bank would be on Fifth and Cleveland, beside the Winston Mutual Life Insurance Company. Newell said the proposed site for the Wachovia Branch would be Seventh and Claremont.

The move by Mechanics and Farmers to Winston-Salem still has to be approved by the State Banking Commission. The next meeting of the Commission is in July but Sansom said the application would not be ready to be submitted at that time, and would probably be considered at the September meeting.

In a spot check of the executives of Area banks, they welcomed the addition of Mechanics and Farmers to the city.

"We welcome competition and we certainly wouldn't oppose it," said Bill Baldrige, a vice-president for North Carolina National Bank.

"We will welcome any new bank to the banking market in Winston-Salem," said Warren Mackinstry, vice-president of United Citizens Bank. "We'll try to help them out any way we can and wish them the best of luck. We try to maintain a positive attitude."

"There is room in this market for more competition," said Charlie Chatham, the senior vice-president of Forsyth Bank. "You have to be pretty naive to say there isn't room for another bank."

"We have a growing, dynamic community and Mechanics and Farmers should do quite well," Chatham continued. "It will depend on who they get to manage their branch."

Speaking Out

Yes, we of the black community do not and will not condone this type of injustice. We believe in justice but we shall not tolerate a duo standard of justice aimed at unfair tactics and harsh brutal treatment of blacks, other minorities, and poor people.

funding along with several requests for a reduction in property taxes.

Following the hearing, the commissioners voted to approve a resolution drafted by vice chairman Mrs. Mazie Woodruff pledging our total support to the Sheriff's Department and any other law enforcement unit in the investigation and apprehension of all persons responsible for any acts of harassment and/or violence against individuals due to their selection of residence or homesite.

In other action during the budget hearing, Experiment in Self-Reliance asked for $50,000 to provide matching funds for $870,000 worth of federal funds for disadvantaged senior citizens, according to board member Dr. Donald Schoonmaker.

Mrs. Estelle Fries, representing senior citizens from the Kimberly Park area, asked the county to allocate $86,000 to allow resumption of senior citizen hot lunch program at Kimberly Park, Kernersville and Southside.

Marshall endorsed the recommendations of the Forsyth County Association of Educators to provide full funding to the budget request of the city/county schools and asked Sheriff Manly Lancaster to resign if "he's not willing to uphold the oath of office" and provide protection to the James Stowe family. He said black citizens should withhold their taxes because, "I don't feel as citizens we should be taxed for protection we're not getting."

Hopkins asked for $150 per month for foster children, plus a $75 clothing allowance three times per year.

Duane Jackson, representing the Friends of the East Winston Library, said the commissioners should fund two additional positions at the branch instead of the 1 1/2 called for in the budget proposal. He said the current staff is working 56 hours per week to keep branch services going.
