Master Ted James, Jr. was crowned Master St. Peter's beating out three other contestants for the crown Sunday night at St. Peter's Church of God Apostolic on Highland Avenue.

James, the son of Rev. and Mrs. Ted James, Sr. raised over $500 to take the crown. He will receive a $50 savings bond as his prize, in addition to other gifts.

Tekora Hash, the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Charles Hash was first runner-up. William Pate, Jr. the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Pate, was second runner-up. Argentina Mills, the daughter of Tina Mills was the third runner-up.

The guest speaker for the contest was Mother Mildred Hash wife of the pastor Dr. R. K. Hash.

Mother Hash told the congregation that there was nothing in the world sweeter than a baby.

"Every child in the world is precious," Mother Hash said. "By having this baby contest it proves that even babies can play a part in the church."

"The Lord was born through a baby," Mother continued. "He could have come to earth in many different ways but He humbled himself to come as a baby."

Also appearing on the program were Julia Postelle, who rendered a solo; Demetria Flowers who recited a poem; the youth choir of the church and Mrs. Francene Knox was the mistress of ceremony.

The baby contest was sponsored by the inspirations of the church. The group is sponsoring a series of events in order to raise funds for the pastor's anniversary. The group raised over $1000 during the baby contest. The group also presented the parents of the contestants with gifts for their participation in the program.

"It's 2 A.M. and I feel rotten. Who has time to read medicine labels?"

Sorry, there is no excuse for not reading the medicine label. The label tells you what it's for, how much to take and how often to take it. It's important information. Before you take any medicine, read the label. Medicines can't help you if you don't take them right.

The Attributes of God

God requires the knowledge of Himself (Hosea 6:6). Charles Spurgeon, the greatest 19th century evangelical leader, rightly deemed, "The proper study of God's elect is God." Indeed, it is self injurious to neglect this:

"We are cruel to ourselves if we try to live in this world without knowing about the God whose world it is...The world becomes a strange, mad, painful place, and life in it a disappointing and unpleasant business, for those who do not know about God. Disregard the study of God, and you sentence yourself to stumble and blunder through life blindfold, as it were, with no sense of direction and no understanding of what surrounds you. This way you can waste your life and lose your soul!" (J. I. Packer).

God's excellencies are known by general and special revelation. General revelation is that knowledge of God gleaned from nature, providence, and man's moral nature. The Bible is God's special revelation. It is a "true report of God" (John Howe), "a glass in which the character and perfections of God may be seen" (Arthur Pink).

The Godhead excellencies are known theologically as attributes (Characteristics, qualities). They distinguish Him from other beings. God, whose nature is undivided and incomprehensible, or rather unknown and unknowable to us, reveals Himself through His attributes which are "not parts of His nature, but displays of the same undivided nature" (John Gill).

Communicable attributes are those which God possesses immeasurably but shares to a limited extent with creatures, such as truth, justice, goodness, power, wisdom, love, holiness. Incommunicable attributes are those which He alone has, such as eternity, infinity, immutability, omniscience, omnipotence. All His attributes are unchangeable and infinite (Ps. 147:5), and belong equally to each person of the Trinity, Father, Son, and Holy Spirit.

men, unlike creation which cannot help but reflect God's glory are invited to glorify Him because we want to. Nevertheless all men are subject to God's sovereign power and His attributes of love, mercy, and grace shall be glorified in our salvation or His justice and severity shall be vindicated in our damnation. Plee to Christ now for salvation from sin and wrath, John 3:16.
