Heningburgs Celebrate Anniversary

Sixty friends and relatives gathered in Reston, Va., on Oct. 13 to help Dr. Alphonse and Willa Mae Scales Heningburg of St. Albans and Sag Harbor, N.Y., celebrate their golden wedding anniversary.

The Heningburgs met while Alphonse was a teacher at Slater Normal School in Winston-Salem, and Willa Mae was a student at Wilberforce College, Wilberforce, Ohio. The couple married on Aug. 13, 1929, in Winston-Salem. They have two sons, Gustav Sr. and Michael Sr., and three grandchildren, Gustav Jr. of Maplewood, N.J., Anne Renee of New Orleans, La., and Michael Jr. of Reston, Va.

Dr. Heningburg, noted educator, was past president of the National Education Association and a U.S. State Department official in Tunisia. He is now retired. Mrs. Heningburg, retired, was employed by the New York City Housing Authority.

The celebration was hosted by their children, Gustav Sr., director of the Newark, New Jersey Urban Coalition and co-host of WNBC television's "Positively Black," Michael Sr., assistant director of the National Health Service Corps, and Sandra, administrative associate with the National Institute of Education.

Guests and family gathered at Michael and Sandra's Reston home for a catered reception and then chaffered to the Marriott Hotel at Dulles International Airport for a formal dinner, toasts and tributes, music and dancing.

Participants traveled from the Bahamas, California, the Midwest, the South and the East Coast to join in tribute, and to relate the couple's numerous and varied experiences enjoyed together from Tuskegee, Alabama to Sag Harbor, New York.

Guests and relatives at the joyous celebration from Winston-Salem were Rev. and Mrs. William Crawford and daughter Sharon Crawford.
