knowledge to some people in city and county government, and accepted by those that knew about it.

"I don't want to make it seem like a hit gang or anything like that. It's just that they crave power. They don't like white lawyers that represent a lot of blacks, they don't like outspoken blacks and they surely don't want Jean as judge."

The source added, "they were going to give Jean a hard time no matter what. They just set her up. If it hadn't been the tickets, it would have been the pot or maybe cocaine or something else. They just don't want a nigger judge...to be perfectly honest, they don't want her as D.A."

Lt. E.L. Yokley, head of the vice and narcotics division said there was "nothing," to the allegations.

"I'm not aware that anything like that is going on in the department. There is no way it could be. It would require massive involvement with the D.A.'s office, judges and the police department. There's just no way."

Jean Burkins

Tisdale, NAACP President Patrick Hairston, Revs. J. Ray Butler and Warnie C. Hay, Alderman Larry D. Little and Spurgeon Griggs Jr., president of the Winston-Salem Improvement Association.

Burkins seemed somewhat flabbergasted by the turn of events. "It all could have been handled with apologies and reprimands," she said. "The handling of this situation far outweighs anything that was done."

She is suspicious of how the information got uncovered. "It is very unusual for police personnel to call to the clerk's office to find out the disposition of a traffic ticket. They will usually call the DA's office. They certainly do not call the newspaper because they cannot find the disposition of the case."

The candidate said it was "scary in the sense that there are people who don't want me in office so badly that they would do this."

When they called over, they knew the tickets had already been paid," she added. "Once they learn the tickets have been paid, they figure it has been dismissed."

Asked if she did anything wrong, Burkins replied, "I wasn't ticket fixing. I paid the parking ticket. My only folly was in getting my own jacket out of the files. I saved somebody some steps. I had no other motive than to keep my name from appearing in the trial docket."

Burkins acknowledges that the incident may have done her campaign some damage. "It probably has been damaging among some quarter because people really don't know what happened. I don't think it has had a great deal of impact because people know me. So far as my campaign committee is concerned, they are more determined."

yard. "I don't know if it was the Ku Klux Klan or not, all I know is when I walked out there and looked at that, I don't know what happened. I guess I went out of my mind."

According to Mrs.

Roseborough, the after effects of the cross burning have been devastating on her entire family.

"We can't leave the children here alone anymore, they used to stay here by themselves, but now they're scared. Now I'm scared to stay here by myself."

The night after the incident at the Roseborough residence, neighbors kept an all-night vigil so that the family could get some sleep.

Mrs. Roseborough said that her family had formerly lived on Wiley Road and Jackson Avenue, prior to moving on Fenimore Street, and have no plans of moving again.

"I haven't thought about moving, we've put too much money in this place. I hope the police or somebody gives us some help. If they don't, I don't know what I'll do," she said.
