Dr. Ananias Hasan

Naturopath Under Investigation

SBI Probes Dr. Hasan

By Donna Oldham
Staff Writer

Dr. Ananias Hasan, a naturopathic physician practicing in Winston-Salem for over 20 years is being investigated by the Forsyth County District Attorney's Office and the State Bureau of Investigation for practicing medicine without a license.

Hasan, who specializes in the treatment of arthritis also lists himself as a general practitioner and as an N.D. rather than an M.D.

"We believe in natural medicine, medicine without narcotics and non-habit forming. We believe in natural air, food, water and human beings. The law of nature is a divine law of God, the natural way, God's way, the right way," said Hasan from his office at 1514 E. 14th St.

Although Hasan said that he has had a few problems with what he calls "false" information about his practice, his problems with the SBI began two weeks ago.

According to Hasan on Sunday, Nov. 2, at approximately 10:30 p.m., he received a call from someone at Forsyth Memorial Hospital claiming that a patient of his was in critical condition at the hospital suffering from a high fever and arthritis.

According to Hasan, the caller identified the patient as a Johnny Butner.

"The caller asked me to check Butner's records because Butner had told them that I was his doctor and had been treating him. I went through my records and did not find his name," Hasan said.

At approximately 10:30 a.m. on Wednesday, Nov. 20, 1980, Hasan was contacted by the SBI.

Clinic Has Jobs For Minorities

By Donna Oldham
Staff Writer

The executive director of the Child Guidance Clinic said that black professionals, particularly in the fields of child and clinical psychology are hard to find because of the competitive nature of the business.

Paul Bragg of the CGC made the comment this week in connection with the center's 25th anniversary celebration.

Bragg said that of his total staff of 30 only two blacks were at the professional level and two blacks held clerical and administrative positions.

"I know that the number is low, as compared with the number of black children that we deal with but recruitment is extremely competitive for black professionals," Bragg said. He continued, "black professionals have their pick of what they want in this job market. We're competing with the Yale Child Studies Center, Johns Hopkins and Mininger. It's even hard for Wake Forest. Good people get gobbled up by more prestigious institutions, it happens here constantly," he said.

Bragg said that most people are concerned with the right type of urban and rural setting when they seek to settle down in a profession.

He added that as the center becomes more accessible to the public, one of his projections for the center in the future is that more black professionals will be hired to more closely correspond with the patient load.

Currently, the Child Guidance Center's patients are 72 percent male, and 28 percent female.

KKK-Nazis Set Free

By Rosie Stevens

The reaction, in the wake of the Klan-Nazi trial acquittals, has been one of shock, disbelief, and downright disgust in the black community. The six defendants, on trial for murder and conspiracy to engage in a riot, were pronounced not guilty by an all-white jury, on all charges.

Mrs. Mae Cynthia Lee, a retired school teacher who works with tutorial services in the city called the dismissals "disgraceful, absolutely disgraceful." Mrs. Lee completely disavows communism but she said "Murder is murder. Those people came looking for a confrontation."

Mrs. Jean Lanier Rudd, a secretary with the U. S. Naval Command at A&T State University stated that she was not at all pleased. She said that she could not see the defendants being freed on all counts of the charges filed. She went further to say that she questioned why the defendants were not found guilty of something.

Bill Martin, an attorney, and a former candidate for the state house, had some questions about the verdict also. Martin said he expected that there would be at least a conviction on manslaughter, but he was shocked that there was no conviction at all.

This sentiment was expressed by a number of people, that the self-defense claimed by the defendants did not appear to be a valid claim in the light of the evidence presented.

However, Martin did point out that any defendant has the right to claim self-defense in a trial. However, he said that he was dubious of the fact that not even one conviction on any of the offenses the jury considered was obtained.

In terms of the event's effect on race relations in the city, Dr. George Simkins, president of the Greensboro chapter of the National Association for Colored People, said he thought the black community would probably be more cautious, arming itself in expectation of provocation.

Simkins also said that blacks would have to protect themselves, because he expressed skepticism that the police department would provide protection for the black community.

Laddie Benton, city hall employee, indicated that to his knowledge, there had never been a conviction of a member of the Klan for terrorizing the black community.

Benton, pointed out that instead, the Klan has been seen as being patriotic, while the victims were usually seen as the problem.

Benton placed the problem of the dismissal squarely on the backs of the black community's leaders. He stated that the infighting among the community's leaders as to who should be the next leader, while this trial was going on was the real problem.

Community representative James Howerton noted that it was a "sad day in Greensboro." Howerton went on to express disappointment at the verdict that was rendered, and to note at the same time that this is a time for the community to unify and to work toward the solutions to problems. Howerton said he believes that solutions can be found to the problems confronting the community.

George Simkins also indicated that the city would have trouble procuring businesses to locate in this town, because of the racial atmosphere.

Down in Morningside community, things were quiet. The usual wash was hanging outside on the clotheslines, with people inside shielding themselves from the cold.

People were reluctant to comment, saying they did not wish to get involved. The atmosphere was one of fear, as the residents waited to see what would strike next.

Applicants Sought For Home Sites

By Sheila Monroe
Staff Reporter

The East Winston Restoration Association Inc., has received approval from the Winston-Salem Board of Aldermen to begin construction on six single-family homes designed for low to moderate income families.

The association has received a $18,000 grant from community development for the proposed project, and must receive six approved applicants by January 9th in order to purchase the land from the city. The lot is located between 11th and 12th Streets and Cameron and Dunleith Avenues.

This is made possible by the Department of Housing and Urban Development Section 235 of the Federal Housing Administration program which provides homes for families with incomes under $15,000.

Under Section 235 a family of five can purchase a five bedroom home at $44,000, and a family of four or less can build on a loan of $38,000. The houses are made affordable to low income families because HUD insures and subsidizes the loan.

Prospective applicants must meet income guidelines set by HUD, and the East Winston Association. Families of two or more must be related by blood, marriage, or operation of law, and must meet the income scale set by HUD.

Income eligibility is determined by family size. The income of the elderly and the handicapped must fall within the 95% of the adjusted median income for Forsyth County.

Interested parties should contact Gloria Goore, Coordinator of the East Winston Restoration Association at 722-0918 or 722-3951, and must obtain a loan application from Wachovia Bank or Cameron Brown.
