EWLDC Plan Discussed

By C.B. Hauser
Special to the Chronicle

Residents of East Winston participated in a discussion of plans for the development of a shopping center in the area, gave some input and expressed some concerns about the shape the center is to take.

The meeting was held Saturday morning in the Winston Mutual Board Room. The meeting was sponsored by the Committee to Promote Black Ownership, and Alderman Virginia K. Newell, chairperson of the committee, presided.

The proposed shopping center is to be built in the area bounded by Fifth Street on the south, Ninth Street on the north, Claremont Avenue on the east, and Cleveland Avenue on the west. The site, an urban renewal area, has been under consideration by a number of developers for a possible shopping center for the past two decades.

The committee discussed some plans for the center which are being drawn up by the East Winston Local Development Corporation, Inc. (EWLDC), a non-profit corporation, which is separate from the Committee to Promote Black Ownership. Atty. R. Lewis Ray was the spokesman for EWLDC. He is a member of both groups.

Such a firm would develop a comprehensive package for the project to include: a feasibility study, a financing plan, a marketing plan, a presentation for prospective tenants, and it would identify and secure all resources required. Also, it would serve as planning co-ordinator for the project.

Since a non-profit organization makes possible broad community participation and appears to be a suitable tool or instrument for securing foundation grants and block support as well as local public support, this type of organization was set up. The EWLDC will remain a non-profit corporation, but it will assist for profit businesses.

It is anticipated that the center will house a grocery store, a package store, a roller skating rink, a radio/T.V.

repair shop, a drug store, a hardware/specialty store and a movie theater.

The committee to Promote Black Ownership was very pleased by the initiative shown by the EWLDC in developing plans for the shopping center. "We want the product of the best minds available. We hope that a fool-proof plan will be developed," said Mrs. Newell.

The audience made the following suggestions:

We want a first class shopping center.

KKK Recruits Students In Local High Schools

By Donna Oldham

The National Director of the New Empire Knights of the Klu Klux Klan said Tuesday that his organization has begun what they hope will be the largest youth drive ever held in Forsyth County.

Vernon Logan of the New Empire Knights said,

"we have started a 'Klan Youth Drive' and we have a goal of 500 high school students by the end of March."

Logan said that the Klan is passing out literature, posters, pamphlets and membership applications in schools, skating rinks, bus stops and "any place where a lot of kinds hang out," hoping to attract potential members.

According to the Klan leader, although some schools don't yet have the required 15 students that it takes for a school to receive a charter, others have "large" members, who Logan said were strongly supported by their parents.

"You have to have a B average and have parental consent," Logan said.

He said that white students were being discriminated against in schools because black students have designated clubs and activities.

"Black students have the Ebony Society and Black History Week. What we're saying is that white students should have the same thing, like 'White History

10,000 Members a Goal

NAACP Kicks Off Drive

The Winston-Salem Branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People recently launched its 1981 membership Campaign. The theme for this year's drive is taken from a speech by the late Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.; "There is no tragedy greater than sleeping through a revolution." Branch President, Patrick Hairston, has announced that James E. Mack will serve as chairman for the campaign. Mack is President of HRC, Inc., management consulting firm located here in Winston-Salem.

The goal for the membership drive, according to Mack, is to involve as large a segment of the community as possible in the activities of the NAACP. Mack says that the NAACP is especially relevant today in light of the conservative posture being assumed by the country. He expressed optimism that other blacks will agree with this idea and support the organization.

Plans are for the membership campaign to run through April 30. Neighborhood centers will be set up across the city to accept membership applications. Also scheduled are door to door canvassing along with other special activities in conjunction with the effort. The campaign goal is 10,000 new members.

CETA Takes a Beating

"CETA is about to take a beating, changes have been proposed and there will be changes made," said Alton Greenwall, chairman of the Employment and Training Advisory Council. The council met on Monday in the NCNB Building to discuss the federal budget cuts and how it will affect the local Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) programs.

Walter W. Farabee, Jr., director of Human Services told the council that under the proposed cuts Employment Acts Title 2-D and 2-6 will cease to function at the end of the year.

These two Titles give the agency the power to fund contracts with public or private non-profit organizations. CETA hires applicants at full salary level. The jobs must have a training potential. Under the proposals, these titles will be cut out completely.

Greenwall stated, "We have spent large sums of money on these programs and we will continue to spend money on the programs that are left." Greenwall told the council that it was their responsibility to do whatever was necessary to aid the city and the program.

Farabee assured members that the Summer Youth Employment Program would be implemented as planned. He said that the funding for the program would be at least equal to that of last year. It was also noted, however, that last year 1200 youths applied for the program but only 500 were able to work.

Yet, Greenwall spoke confidently as he addressed the meeting. "I firmly believe that there is and has been great value in the (CETA) Program and we must convey that confidence to the community, Greenwall said. "We must see that the training that has been given is not wasted," he added.

Greenwall also said that steps would be taken to insure the participants in the current programs are placed into the mainstream of the work force, even if their program is being phased out.

Black Caucus Urge Transcending Parochialism

Greensboro--Rep. Ron Dellums, D-Calif., and Rep. Mickey Leland, D-Texas, both members of the Congressional Black Caucus, urged delegates at the conference on Rural Development and Predominately Black Institutions to develop a coalition to "fight human misery of all people."

Dellums, speaking to an audience of 250 community leaders and university personnel from the nation's 17 black land-grant institutions at the Dunfey Hotel in Houston, Texas, February 19-21, lashed out at the Reagan administration for the proposed budget cuts in human services. Dellums said, "when you look at the tax proposals, they have nothing to do with eradicating the incredible tax burden that is being born by the working class and middle income human beings in this country, but that it is an extraordinary benefit to the corporate wealthy, the corporate elite, and the extraordinarily powerful in this country."

According to Dellums, President Reagan's proposed increase in military spending is being substantiated by a decrease in spending for human services. He said that the Reagan administration is proposing a "rapid,

Women At Amos Cottage Ask For Federal Investigation

By Donna E. Oldham

Support is rapidly mounting for the seven black women who were fired from their positions as patient care attendants at Amos Cottage Rehabilitation Hospital, a division of Bowman Gray School of Medicine.

The women, who were dismissed because according to their supervisor, Denise Estridge, they didn't follow their new job descriptions," had worked for Amos Cottage for a combined 70 years of service before the mass firing.

The first story about the women on February 14, drew wide-spread attention, and last week's story, from a former employee of Amos Cottage drew a record number of support calls to the Chronicle office.

Two women, one a present employee at Amos Cottage, and the other, a former employee at the hospital told the Chronicle this week that state and federal authorities should

Lunch Plans Cut

By Yvonne Anderson
Staff Writer

Winston-Salem/Forsyth County Schools announced last week that beginning March 16, the family size and income eligibility criteria for free and reduced price meals and free milk for children served under the National School Lunch, School Breakfast, and Special Milk Programs will change.

According to Douglass Pungler, school attorney, the change does not mean across the board increases in the criteria levels. Pungler stated that in some cases the criteria goes up but for the larger size families the criteria goes down, especially under the reduced priced meals program. Pungler also said that the price of the meals was not subject to increase until the end of the year when the price will be evaluated as a part of the total school budget.

Free lunches are currently provided in the Winston-Salem/Forsyth County Schools for 11,434 children while another 2,042 receive reduced priced lunches for 10 cents. Subsidies for these programs are provided by the federal government.
